KEEPING A GOOD THING GOING...

"Through these halls walk champions." This is the message that greets Scona Lords each time they walk down the school's lively, spirited hallways. The trophy cases and walls are decorated with the awards and pictures of past and present Lords, whose achievements give one the sense of tradition and hope. The dedication of students and staff is rewarded with the feeling of belonging, the chance to be a part of something that is larger than the individual. Scona is not merely a building filled with textbooks and chalk. It represents a commitment to quality in academics, athletics and the arts that has developed over forty years. Even the school mascot justly embodies the traits of Scona Lords. The Lord is known for its strength and endurance.

The persistence and determination of Scona students have made this school one of the most highly regarded in the city. Scona is known for its unique balance of tradition and excellence. While some schools have begun to renovate, often sacrificing heritage for technology, Scona has kept up with the rapidly changing education system of the 90s, while preserving a rich sense of history. The pride and spirit that existed in the staff and students forty years ago when the building first opened is still evident today. The perseverance and ambitions of the students thrive under the hard work, concern, and watchful eyes of the teachers at Scona.

Here, the atmosphere is a mixture of gravity and friendliness. Students can express themselves without fear of being discriminated against for being different. It is a place to hang out with friends, to have fun, to laugh, to hope and to dream. But Scona also prepares its students for what lies ahead. High school helps a person to realize his or her goals and ambitions. From their past accomplishments, to their present challenges and future goals, one thing is certain. Scona Lords will strive to keep a good thing going.

GETTING STARTED

After years of the same routine and same group of friends, the transition from junior high to high school is dramatic. Classes are longer, there are more new faces, the building is bigger and much more confusing. Though these changes are the cause of much anxiety, they do not hamper the enthusiasm of the new student at Scona.

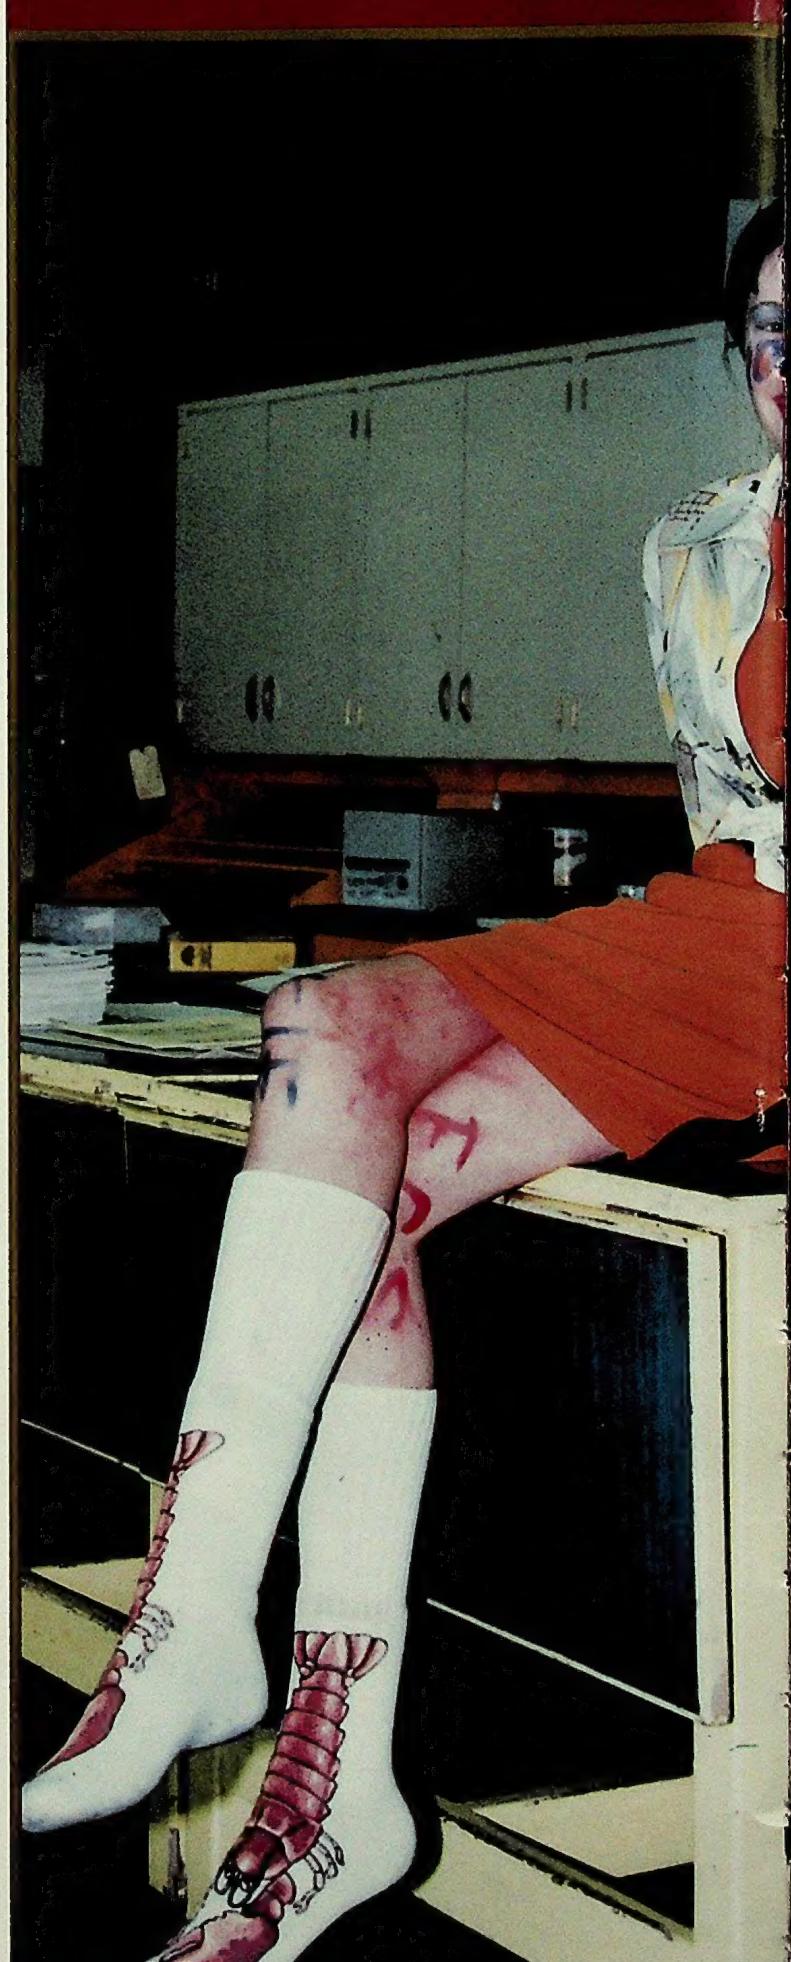

At last, after three years of the same old thing, grade ten students have something new to look forward to. Instead of moving from class to class with the same people, you get to meet new people in nearly every class. There are more opportunities to become involved in the school, and new interests to explore. There are higher stakes now, too.

Although this is only the first year of high school, there is a sense that the future is fast approaching. While the first week, struggling to find classrooms, getting to know new people and teachers, seemed like it would never end, new routines are soon established and things begin to progress much more smoothly. There are many adjustments to be made, but as the fundamentals of high school become more familiar, there is a sense that high school is off to a good start!

GETTING THERE...

"Thank goodness we're not in grade ten anymore," could be tattooed on the faces of grade eleven students. Grade eleven may be considered the reward for surviving last year. Many new and elite opportunities arise, such as shedding science 10 and branching out into the wonderful world of Biology, Chemistry, and Physics 20. And most of all, being able to take CALM 20, the 3 credit guide to life that the Alberta Government put in the curriculum, thinking students have nothing better to do. There are no worries, it's only grade eleven.

The inferiority of grade ten has passed, while the pressures of diploma exams and post-secondary education are not as pressing. There is no orientation or graduation ceremonies. However, there is time to wander the halls in awe, admiring the abstract art of groovy arrows and clouds that frame the lime green doorways, not to mention the tiles on the walls that give Scona the comfort of a nice warm bathtub. Ahhh, the laid back year of the eleventh grade- possibly the second best year of high school.

GETTING OUT

It is the year that all prospective students set their sights on in Kindergarten. Twelve more, five more, one more year and its over, school is done. It is not until reaching the twelfth year, the pinnacle of a high school education, that the realization that the past twelve years have been more than books and tests is able to emerge. Grade twelve is the year that we are able to realize what it was that made the homework and the endless lectures seem worthwhile. It is not the studying or the results on a great test but the experiences and memories that are born over the twelve years aimed towards a common goal. All students work towards the concrete proof of a high school diploma but each follows a unique path to attain this objective. Whether memories are forged from athletic conquests or valuable contributions to clubs and groups, Grade Twelve is the culmination of each person's individual contribution. Looking back on the twelve years of school it is difficult to remember specific tests or projects, but the thing that rings with the most clarity is the thought of the people we have met and learned from and the unique experiences that have been instilled upon us.

KEEPING BUSY

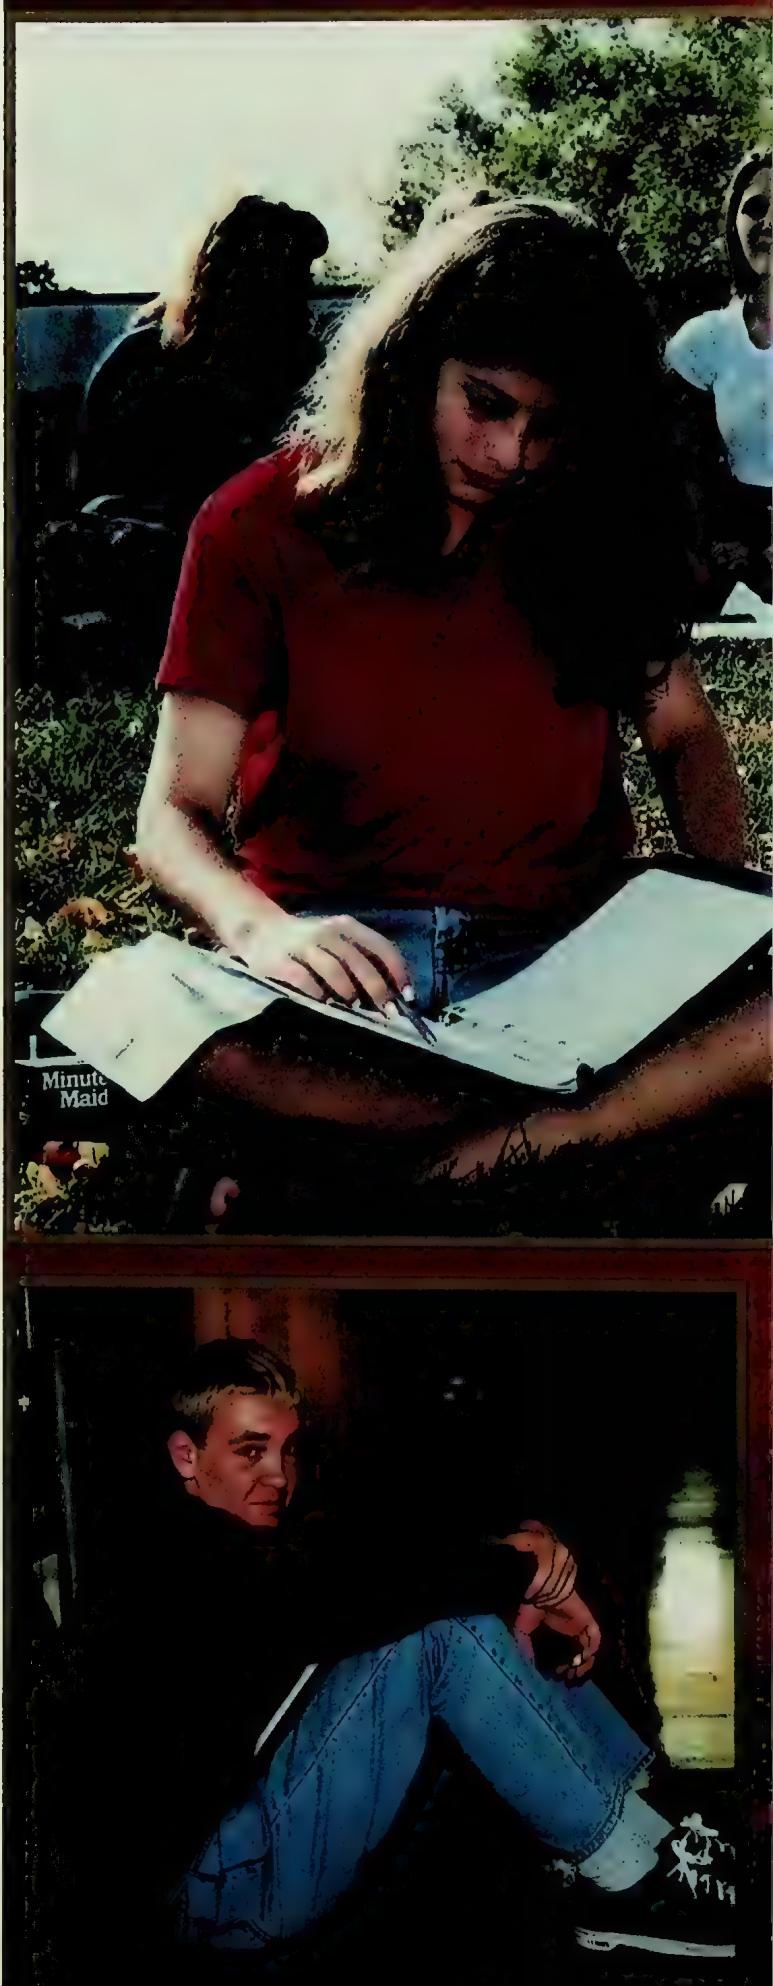

Lunch hours, spares and ten minute breaks are filled with opportunities to escape from classroom routines. Whether you're hanging out with friends or taking time to get away from it all, spare time is not taken for granted at Scona. Card games, hacky sac and long chats continue to enrich some of the empty moments at Scona, while Whyte Ave. provides a unique destination for food, fun and fashion.

Although the labours of classroom teachers are appreciated, and sometimes even enjoyed, the best memories of high school tend to be the experiences that transcend the classroom. Who will remember conics, communism or the conjugation of the past tense of chante? What will be remembered are those times spent with friends.

GETTING BACK

This year, September 11-15 marked Scona's annual Welcome Week. Put on by the Student's Union, events and activities throughout the week serve to invite all students back into the House of the Lords and welcome those new to the school. To kick off the week, students had an opportunity to take part in a huge game of musical chairs. Tuesday, the grade tens attended an orientation assembly. After listening to the band and watching a hilarious drama skit, Mr. Anderson and Praveena Jayabal spoke to the new students about Scona's history of tradition and excellence. On Wednesday, many students explored the diverse extra-curricular opportunities Scona has to offer at Clubs Day. "Head on bat", one of the more popular events of the week, gave students the opportunity experience dizziness and confusion outside of class. After circling around a baseball bat 15 times, students had to hop into a potato sack and race to the finish line. Welcome Week wrapped up on Friday with a barbecue at lunch and a dance in the evening. The week was a huge success; a definite cure for the "back to school blues."

GOOD VIBRATIONS

To the mere stranger, the people crowded in the bleachers and on the field may appear to be just a bunch of loud, screaming teenagers, energetic though they may be. But to Scona students, they have more significance.

Fans represent the very heart of Scona spirit. It is tradition, or perhaps out of habit, for prides of Scona Lords (dressed in red and gold) to huddle in groups of friends to offer their support and loyalty to the athletes, in hopes that they can provide even an ounce of inspiration. These students, however, don't go to events, such as track, swimming, football, basketball, and volleyball, just to show their school pride and spirit. They go there to also have fun, hang out with friends, and be part of the crowd.

Although they often take a backseat to the athletes, the fans crammed into the bleachers, are a vital part of the event. Fans provide the necessary support for the athletes to strive to continue the tradition and excellence.

SPIRIT AND PRIDE

If James Bond himself had been at Scona's autumn pep rally, he probably would have tried to register for class right after! For an entire hour, students got to take pride in Scona's many accomplishments. From the Scam club to Senior Mens Football, each team and club displayed its talents on stage.

Besides learning about each team and club, Scona got to celebrate it's proud history and anticipate it's bright future.

Of the three teams sent to finals up to this point, we now have Senior Womens and Junior Mens Volleyball Champions. Our Cross Country team won its 22nd consecutive championship and the Lord's Swim team is hoping to make it 10 in a row. Perhaps one of the most memorable accomplishments of the year was made by the Senior Mens Football team. For the first time in sixteen years the team graced the play-off field.

The most exciting part of the whole event was the crowd. Despite Gaylord's absence, Scona students brought forth enough spirit to fill the school. Every act on stage (even the Swim team's race with Superman) was greeted with enthusiasm. New and old students were united and refreshed by the pep rally.

TREATS AND TINSEL

The Halloween celebration was kicked off with Scona's traditional fashion show, complete with everyone from the Energizer Bunny to Daffy Duck. The fun, however, did not end at 3:00PM. The night was an obvious success judging by the amount of people who had to stay home the following day with a sore stomach. And before the leftover candy had a chance to collect dust on store shelves, clerks were already making room for the Christmas decorations.

Christmas this year was a definite season of giving for Scona. Each home room had clothes and food drive for those less fortunate, and a teddy bear and used toy collection was also initiated for children who had to spend the holidays in the hospital. Scona also celebrated by hosting its annual Christmas LOT. The show was filled with enormous talent as spectators were dazzled by difficult biking stunts, dancers and singers. It was the perfect way to say a temporary good-bye to the students for Christmas Break.

VALENTINES DAY

Spring: the season of love! Scona's holiday events included the ever-famous Dating Game, and the return of the Computer Cupid.

Meanwhile, down in the cafeteria, the success of the Dating Game could be heard throughout the halls. It was also apparent by the candy grams, teddy bears and flowers that flowed freely throughout Scona hallways, that the Lords not only greeted Cupid with open arms, but gave him a helpful nudge as well.

Let's make a love connection! Walter Cisnero, Chris Forrest, and Tamara Krawchenko take the leap.

DANCES

After a week of school related stress, there is nothing more welcoming than the prospect of R 'n' R. What better way to kick off the weekend than with a Friday night dance.

Scona dances offer a wide variety of music, that is able to meet the musical preference of any individual. Ranging from disco to alternative, Scona boasts the ability to revitalize even the most wildest party animal for those dreaded Monday mornings. After all, no play and all work makes one a very dull student.

MOO-Z-EE-ING ALONG

Scona's annual Western Daze was a roaring success yet again. From the morning pancake breakfast to the country line dancing at lunch and endless stream of cowboy hats, our Lords did a fantastic job that even Calgary would be jealous of!

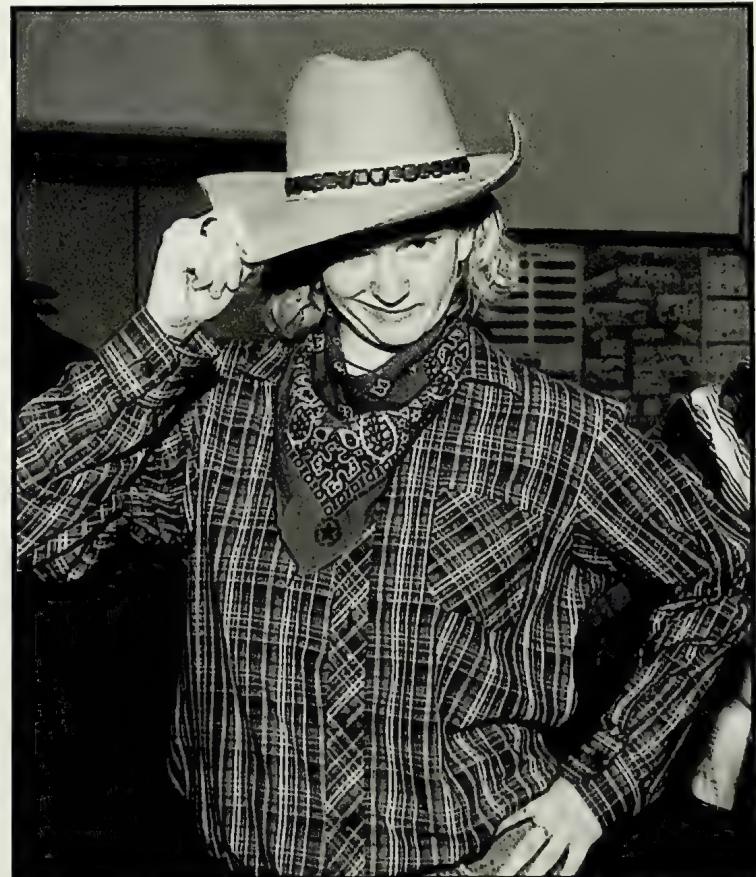

Western Daze is the one opportunity where students, staff, and parents collaborate together in a joint effort to make this whole event a "Yee-Ha" of a time. This year's celebration was definitely one to remember due to all the students and parents who came to school at 6:15 AM to set up for the breakfast, and the teachers who entertained us with country music and dancing.

Scona celebrities such as 'Shania' Mcrae and 'Garth' Benterud made their debuts with the local band, Sludge, and many Scona Lords surprisingly shed their skin to reveal the cowboy within. We can't wait for Y'all to come and join us next year!

Crooning those cowboy tunes, Mr. Anderson sings with the band, Sludge.

LORDS OF THE WORLD

Take a handful of ethnic dancers and funky fashion supermodels, add some Martial Arts, stir in a debate, throw in a bagpipe or two and what do you get?

No it's not Gaylord's latest party idea, but none other than International Week at Scona. Talk about keeping a good thing going, Scona's 2nd Annual International Week began with a spectacular assembly where East Indian, Scottish and Native dancers grooved to their music and people smashed concrete and wood blocks to pieces with human body parts.

And if that wasn't exhilarating enough, one could partake in the lunch hour language lessons. When your stomach started to growl during the week of March 5-8, fear not, the last day of International Week satisfied its cravings with tasty ethnic tidbits at Scona's fabulous food fair.

Where else would you get the chance to learn pick-up lines in Latin, Dutch, and Ukrainian, and travel the world in five days? Only at Scona's International Week.

Ravi Sidhu applies the finishing touches before his performance.

THE RIMERS OF ELDRICH

Despite the mind boggling title, The Rimers of Eldrich proved to be a thrilling trip to the past. The play's unique atmosphere combined with Scona students' exquisite acting talents created an event that will not be forgotten.

As they journeyed from past to present, characters became more and more mysterious. Eldrich, a small town in Bible-Belt America is consumed with gossip and half-truths. The plot heightened as we watched Skelly (Shawn Wells), a desolate bush man, threaten Eva Jackson (Ashley Dawe) and warn her of the dire consequences. Eva, more scared of Skelly than his predictions, thinks nothing of the man. The small town of Eldrich experiences a drastic change while leaving the audience with open mouths.

This year's play left Scona with an exciting new look at our school's talent. It enlightened the audience and brought new meaning to the words "amateur acting."

Rita Sheena's performance is one of many which make this year's play a success!

Kris Riddell, Tristan Massing, Romina Bahrami and Jessica Horvath.

RISING STARS

With over 112 student participants, under 3 months time, a limited budget, and unlimited potential, Scona Drama has once again pulled off a remarkable feat, and produced ten of the finest One Act performances in Scona's history. From auditions to opening night, directors, actors, and stage crew with a potpourri of experience literally put their blood, sweat and tears into productions.

This year, the directors' self-chosen plays were Caroline Lawson's "The Marriage Proposal", Carolyn Waye's "Neck-Breaking Car-Hop", Sittanur Shoush's "The Zero Sum Mind", Tristan Massing's "To Burn a Witch", Ajay Juneja's "Bar and Ger", Ravi Sidhu's "The Ledge, the Ledger, the Legend", Shaun Wells' "Heroman", and Chelsea McKay's improv/drama Troupe. The two plays selected for City Finals were Eric MacDonald's "Variations in the Death of Trotsky", and Holly Anderson's "I Never Saw Another Butterfly", where they accumulated several awards including Best Actress, and Best Director. "I Never Saw Another Butterfly" was also chosen by the Zone 8 High School Drama Festival, where it again won an armful of awards.

As tradition has decreed, the One Act Festival represents the strength of Scona's stamina through its students, truly proven to rise above any star, figurative or otherwise.

I Never Saw Another Butterfly, directed by Holly Anderson, graced the stage at the provincial one act Festival.

Tyler Waye, Eric MacDonald and Cade Barry prove their acting ability by being a part of this year's One Act Festival.

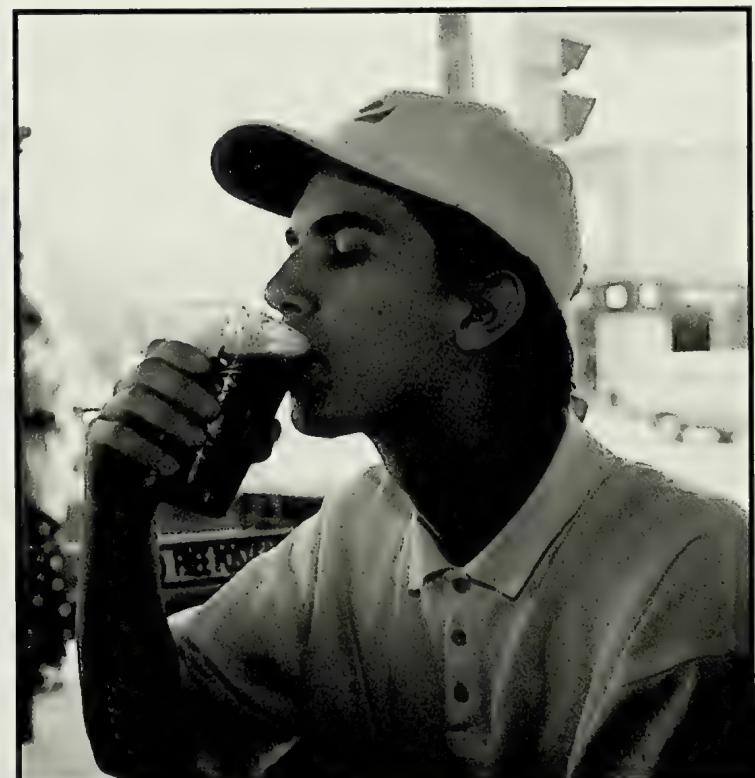

SECOND HOME

With four decades of history, Scona has become synonymous with the Strathcona and Whyte Ave area. While many schools have local hangouts, Scona students are not merely visitors in the coffee shops, old bookstores, and the surrounding area, but actually an integrated aspect of the community. This sense of belonging merely adds to the close knit attitude of Scona. Here the students feel more at ease and at home in the green tiled hallways. Large packs of Lords can be seen huddling in corners of Grabba Jabba, and Second Cup satisfying their daily caffeine fix, or in Devine Decadence, scoping out the latest batch of vintage clothing. The area of Whyte Ave is as unique as Scona students, themselves. As a result, students form a closer bond towards the area, the neighbourhoods, and the friends that they have made in this school. The ambiance of Whyte Ave is obviously reflected in the personalities of the Lords, and students feel a sense of pride and protectiveness for the community. It has become a part of them, and in a sense, their home.

Adam Kuss starred as Trotsky himself in The Variations on the Death of Trotsky, produced by Eric MacDonald.

CELEBRATING OUR FOURTIETH

1995 marked the 40th anniversary of Strathcona Composite High School. Nearly 50 years after Strathcona Collegiate Institute, another Strathcona school had been built. The school cost over $3 000 000 to build and furnish.

The anniversary provided an opportunity to reflect not only on how much has changed, but also on how many things have remained the same. Although the staff and students have changed, and new challenges face us, a quote from the first S.C.H.S. yearbook reveals that some things will always remain the same.

"Despite the imprint high school has made on our lives, the years have passed with incredible speed and soon will remain only as fond memories. Glancing back over the years, we remember the struggles we had grasping the fundamentals of various courses, and commiserate with the teachers who were responsible for establishing those facts and figures within our unresponsive mind. It is our teachers who have encouraged and coaxed us, and struggled to prepare us for our departmental exams. As we go out into the world to follow our chosen professions, we leave up to those who come after us the responsibility of giving to Strathcona Composite their best and maintaining the high standards of the school."

Mr. Anderson reiterated this message at both the morning and evening ceremonies. These ceremonies included a retrospective of both fashion and music provided by Scona staff and students. The Fine Arts department enriched the celebration with performances. In addition, five new members were inducted into the Hall of Fame. Dick Mather was

For the 22nd consecutive year, Scona's Cross Country team endured the competition at the City Championships. There were over sixty members, all of whom exhibited remarkable Scona talent and unmistakable Scona Spirit.

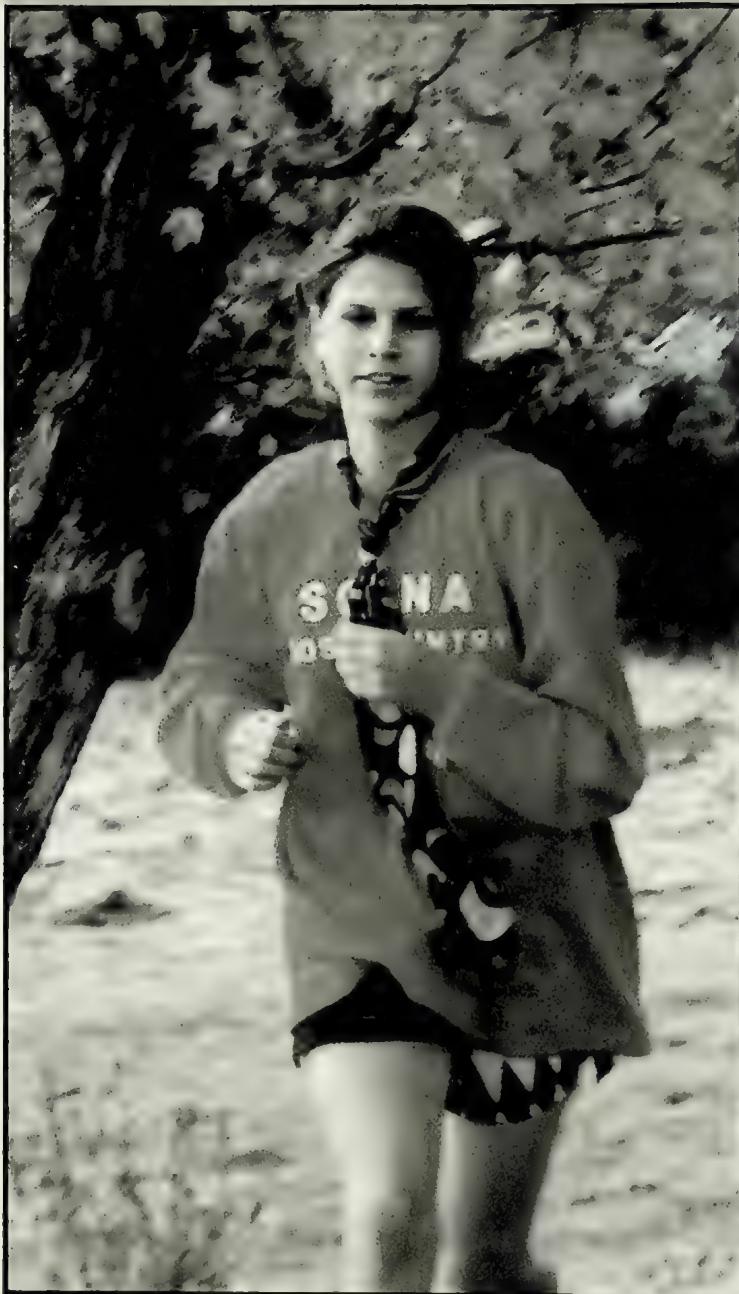

After only a month of hard training, our runners went on to tackle the notoriously brutal course up at Goldbar Park for the City Championships. Soon after the victory at City Finals, members of the team went on to Sundry where they won the Provincial Championships for the second year in a row.

Although Cross Country

is traditionally a short season compared to other sports in the school, it is also one of the most celebrated. In keeping with fabulous Scona spirit, this year was definitely one of the best season's ever.

SERVE, SET, SPIKE

The season was intense for all Volleyball Lords this year. Winning tournament after tournament, the teams left their opponents quivering in fear. The fan support was tremendous, they would scream, cheer and dance while watching the powerful attacks against which no one stood a chance. The teams served those perfect aces, made those perfect digs and stuffs. All teams had talent, dedication and barrels of fun, once again proving Scona is number one!

The Senior Men were crowned the 4A provincial champions for the second year in a row. They also placed second in the City Final, Titan Volleyball Tournament, and UBC tournament. The Senior Women were equally successful, winning the gold medal in the City Finals, U of A and Bev Facey tournaments. The women also won the silver medal at the Salisbury tournament, and bronze in provincials. The Junior Men placed third in the Eastglen and J. Percy Page Invitational, and won the silver medal in the John Paul II tournament. Their greatest accomplishment, however, was winning the gold in the City Finals. The Junior Women won silver medals at the John Paul II and J. Percy Page Invitational and claimed the bronze at the Eastglen tournament.

A DRIVING FORCE

This was a memorable year for Scona Lords Football. Both the Junior and Senior teams put forth quite a commendable effort, and when the Senior team finished with 3 wins and a spot in the playoffs for the first time in 16 years, Scona was proud to shout "WE ARE THE LORDS".

This year, the Senior team also said goodbye to long time Coaches Drever and Harker, and welcomed a whole new training staff lead by Coaches Gurba, Shante, and Farrar. Despite the change, the Scona Senior team managed to win back to back games for the first time in almost a decade.

Both teams dazzled the fans with their skill and talent and kept us in suspense during every game. Their integrity and commitment to the sport has inspired us to pursue our own dreams regardless of past wins or losses.

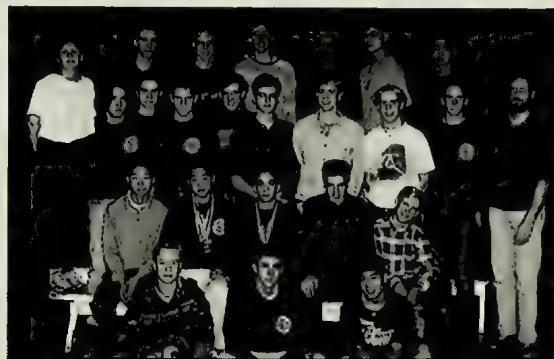

With a new "Go Hard or Go Home" attitude, there is a definite driving force pushing for the excellence of team spirit and school pride.

LIKE FISH OUT OF WATER...

Adam Mills shows his competitive spirit, as he prepares for the race.

Steve Ruggiero is swimming towards another victory for Scona. Here's to another 10 years!

The pride of the Lords continues . . .

With Scona spirit and dedication going back many years the swim team of sixty students was an impressive force to deal with. They practiced one hour a day, five days a week, for four months preparing for the City Championship. Practices were held at our pool as well as Kinsmen Sports Center. Various meets throughout the season helped them gain great placements for the City Finals and a wealth of experience.

Hard work was not all that difficult. The smiles, laughter, and spirit showed that they were still having fun. Their clear enthusiasm was also visible through the various designs on their backs, shoulders and arms at the city finals. Of course nobody could miss their team spirit, for when a Lord swam all the Lords roared with support. Thus a new city record was set by winning the City Championship title for an entire decade. With one stroke of their mighty paws the Lords defeated our rivals the Harry Ainlay Titans, recapturing the womans' trophy and taking the mens' title. "All our trophies are home now," said a proud Joyce Wong.

Our thanks go out to Ms. Brice, Mr. Goldie, and Mr. Richards for their time and effort in coaching the Swim team this year and to Tanya Buhlman, and Jordan Cartwright, former students, for their help keeping the tradition going.

HOLIDAY CLASSIC

In the tradition of good will and holiday spirit, the annual Holiday Classic was held in the Scona gymnasium during the week before the Christmas break. This tournament was a friendly competition between the senior basketball teams of various high schools around Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The competitors, which were introduced by Perry Solzowski of ITV in the opening ceremony, included the Lindsay Thurber Raiders of Red Deer, the Walter Murray Marauders of Saskatoon, the O'Neill Titans of Regina, the Bowness Trojans of Calgary, and the home team, the Strathcona Lords.

Although the games included fan favourites such as the "slam dunk" contest, the main events were the actual scrimmages, in which both the Scona women and mens teams won. This event helped celebrate the Christmas cheer as well as ringing in Scona spirit for the coming new year.

THROUGH THE HOOP

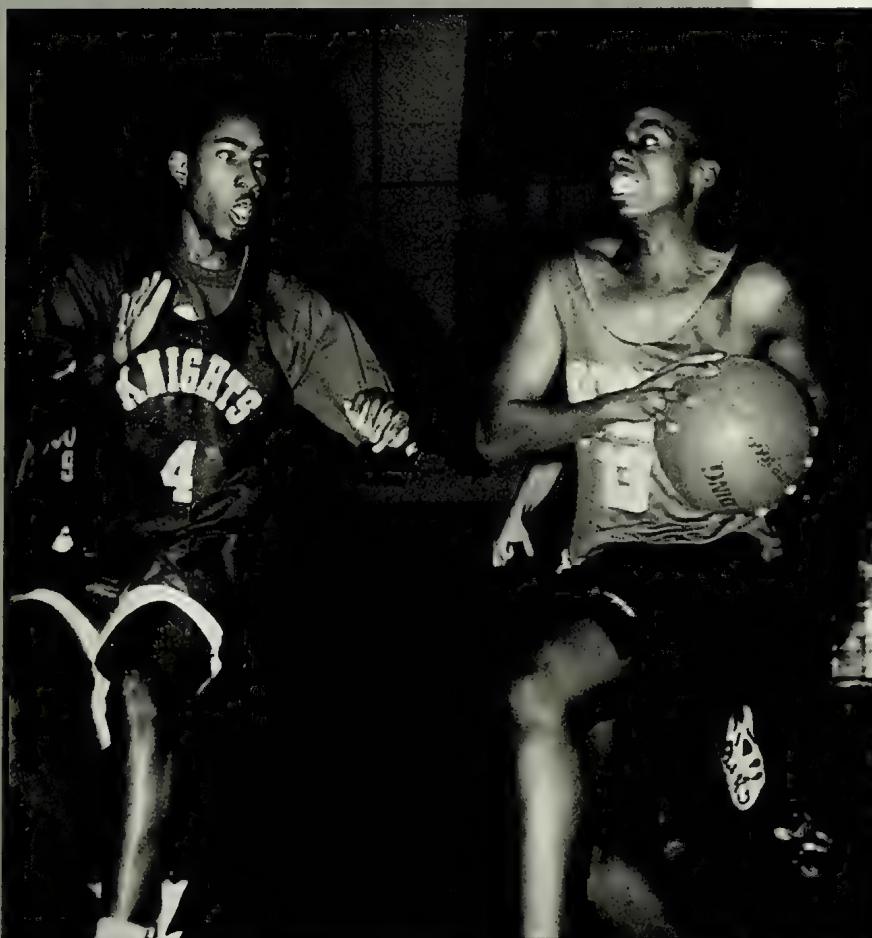

Never before has the House of Lords seen such prowess on the hardwood floors of the basketball court. Many of this school's finest athletes can be found shooting hoops, dribbling down the court, deeking out the competition, executing layups, jumping high and even slam-dunking.

Ignoring past oversights of the previous years, the men and women of the Scona Senior and Junior Basketball programs have escaped the shadows cast upon them by the more prominent Scona Track and Swimming programs.

This season the Senior Men achieved the highest provincial ranking in Scona's history by earning second in the Provincial Top Ten. It took an upset in the City Semi-Finals to finally cut the Lords' season short. The Senior Women enjoyed Top Ten status throughout the year until losing a disappointing game to Harry Ainley in the City Semi-Finals.

Also both the Scona Junior Boys and Junior Girls teams improved greatly throughout the year and gained valuable league and tournament experience that will build the foundation for successful seasons in the future.

ROCKS AND BIRDIES

BADMINTON

After 27 years, the Scona Lords have come back out on top. This year's badminton team was probably the best in Scona's history, and rightfully so. Of the 18 members, a full third traveled to Montreal for the Canadian National Junior Championships. Through hard work, and determination, the Lords swept Ainley in the City Finals. Perseverance was an asset that was not lost by the team throughout the entire season. This success would not have been possible without the coaching and support of Mr. Cheng and Mr. Gerun. With Mr. Cheng's donuts and Mr. Gerun's constant camera flashing, the team was always pumped for its matches.

CURLING

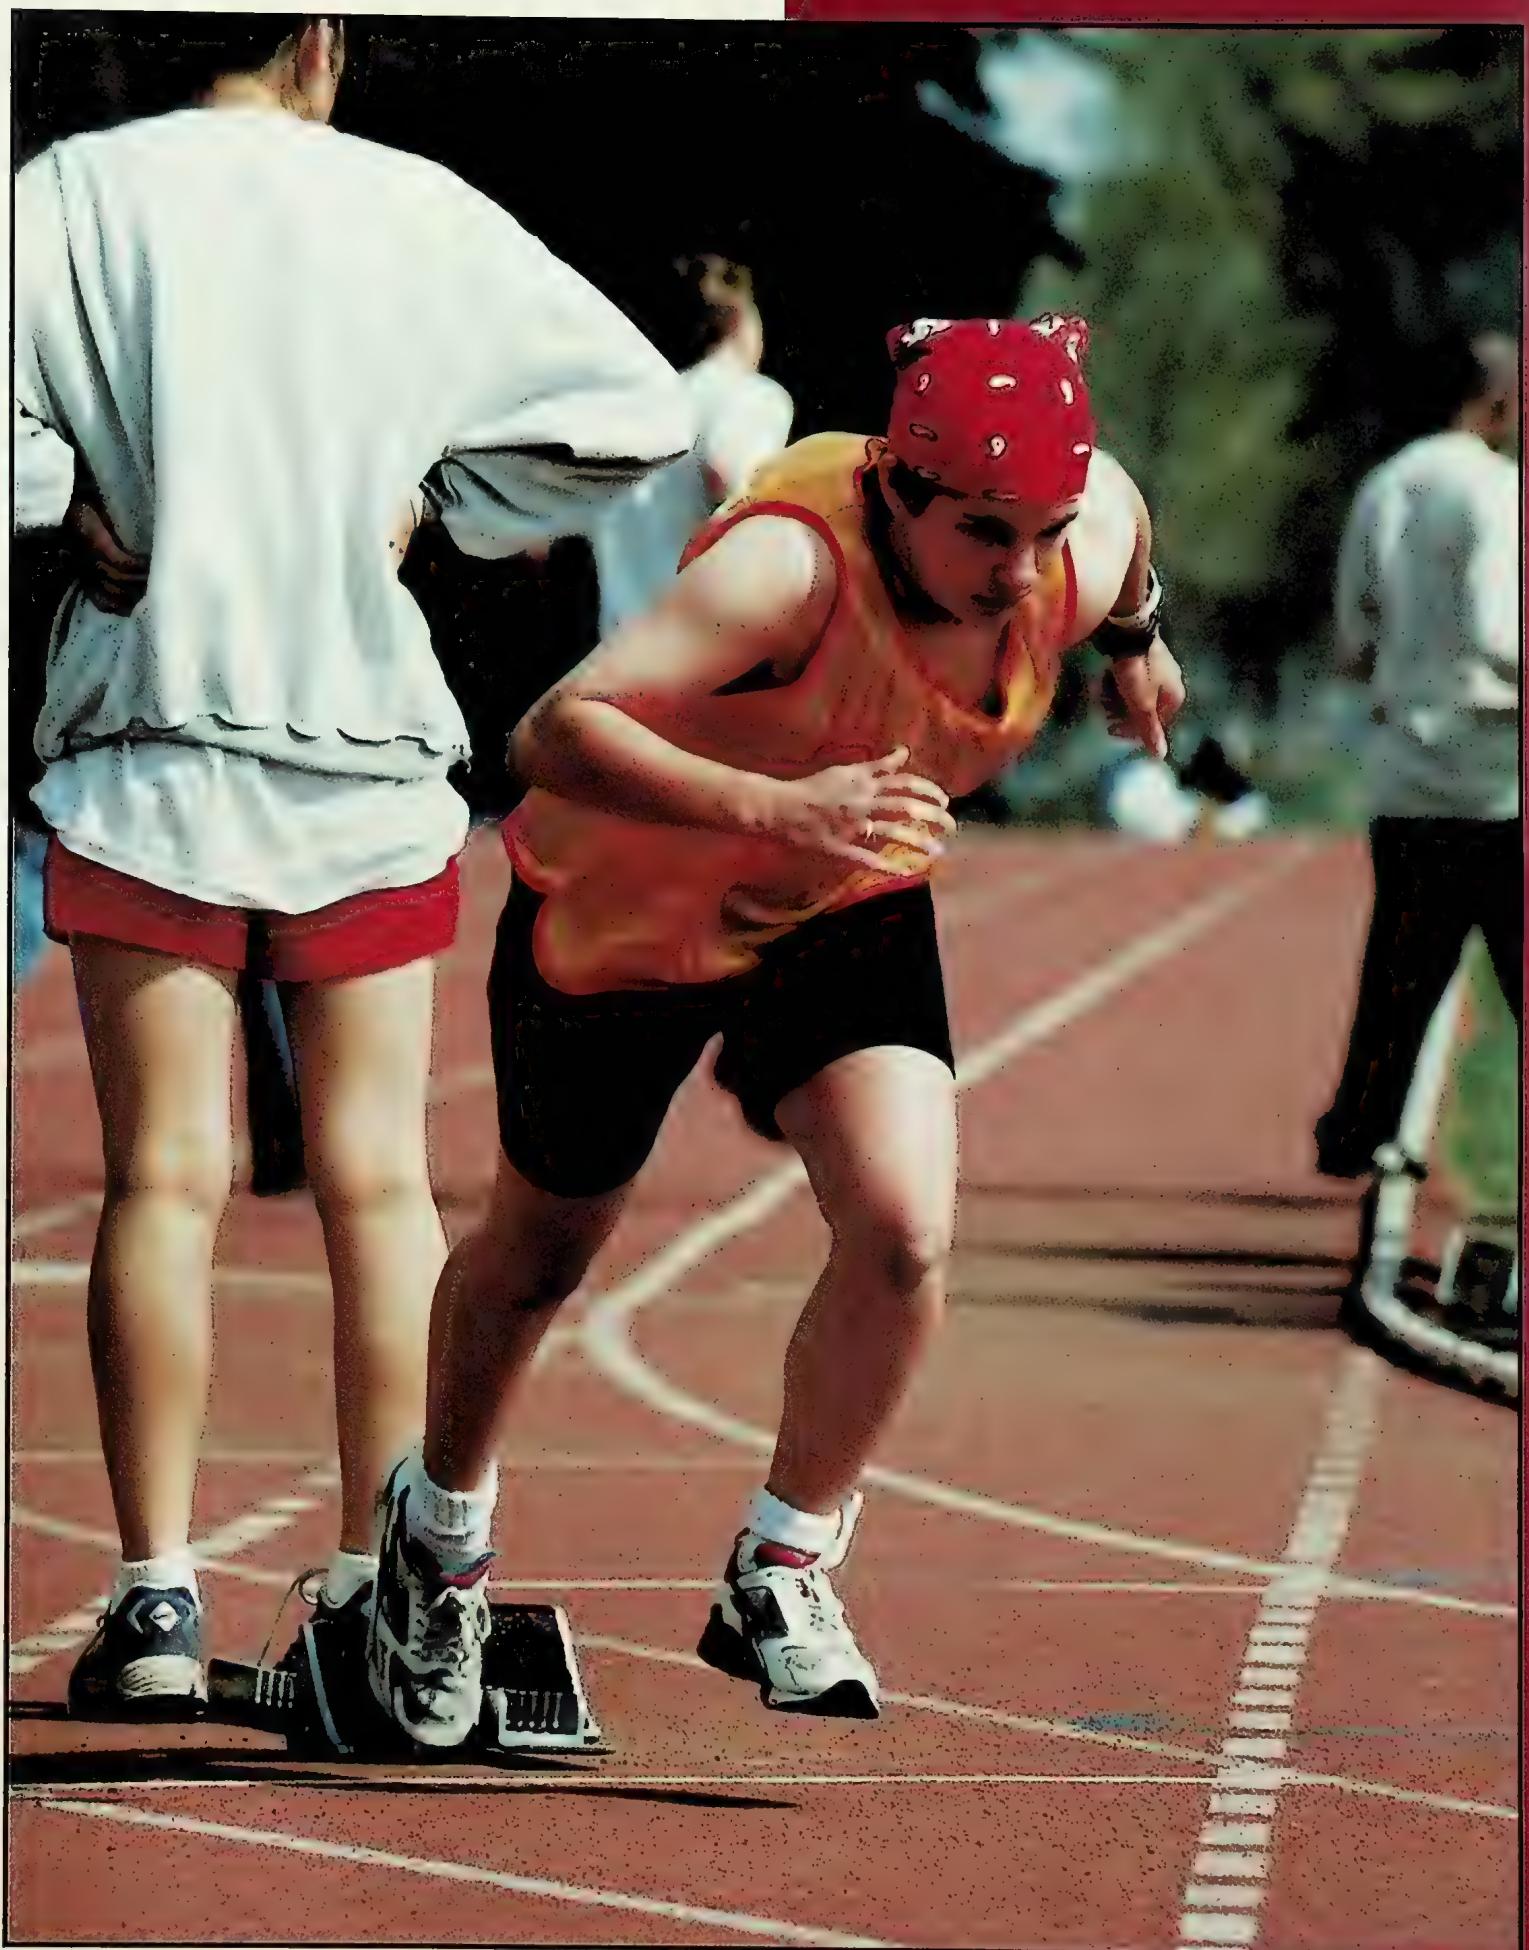

Strathcona Lords sported another excellent season this year. We had two Junior teams, both of which performed at a fantastic level. The first team, which consisted of Peter Kaechele, Darryl Wiechman, Lisa Kendall, and Arron Lutter made it all the way to the Championship Quarterfinals. The second team, Aleem Karmali, Eric Matheson-Jones, David Wong, and Trish Prouse advanced to the Divisionals Consolation Finals. All players participated in the Northern Provincial Zone Championships where Scona claimed the silver medal. Congratulations, Lords!

AGAIN! 1971-96

A quarter of a century. The year 1996 signifies an accomplishment that no other school has - in the past or will in the future - come close to matching. Twenty-five years of consecutive City Championships. Great athletes and students have given whatever they possess to shut the doors on the competition and dominate the same grounds for 25 consecutive years. This year, Scona sent many athletes to the Provincials through successful performances at the City Championships. The girls were led by Tavia Bababunte who captured gold in the 200m, 400m, and 800m races in both the city and provincial contests. John Struger and Paul Herrington led the boys with Provincial gold medals in the 100m, 100m hurdles, and 110m hurdles, and Dickson Kwan threw away the competition with a Provincial gold in Javelin.

In the year 1996, Scona students sent a message to the athletes that started it all in 1971. They showed through their successful efforts that Scona still has the monopoly on Edmonton Track and Field. They proved with their hard working attitude that Scona athletes still possess the same pride and sportsmanship that their predecessors had. And most important of all they confirmed through victory what every other competitor has learned over the past 25 years - if you are going to come to Southside Athletic Grounds, home of the Lords, you are going to witness the making of a legend.

Angela Lodberg sprints off the blocks for a great start.

LOGARITHMS 'N' LABS

The Math and Science program at Scona is both educational and diverse. The classes that are offered range from both the 13, 23, and 33 stream in mathematics, to the more academic main stream, including a beginner calculus course, Math 31.

In the sciences, a student has the liberty of taking Biology, Chemistry, Physics, or any combination of the three. With enthusiastic students and capable teachers, enriching projects are never far away.

One colourful learning experience has always been the traditional dissections in Biology classes. By experimenting on actual specimens, students begin to fully comprehend the workings of an organism, information which was previously only seen in textbook diagrams.

Although many students find difficulties with Math and Science, they are a necessary skill in most career paths. With the help of patient teachers, most students can master the necessary skills needed to successfully complete the course.

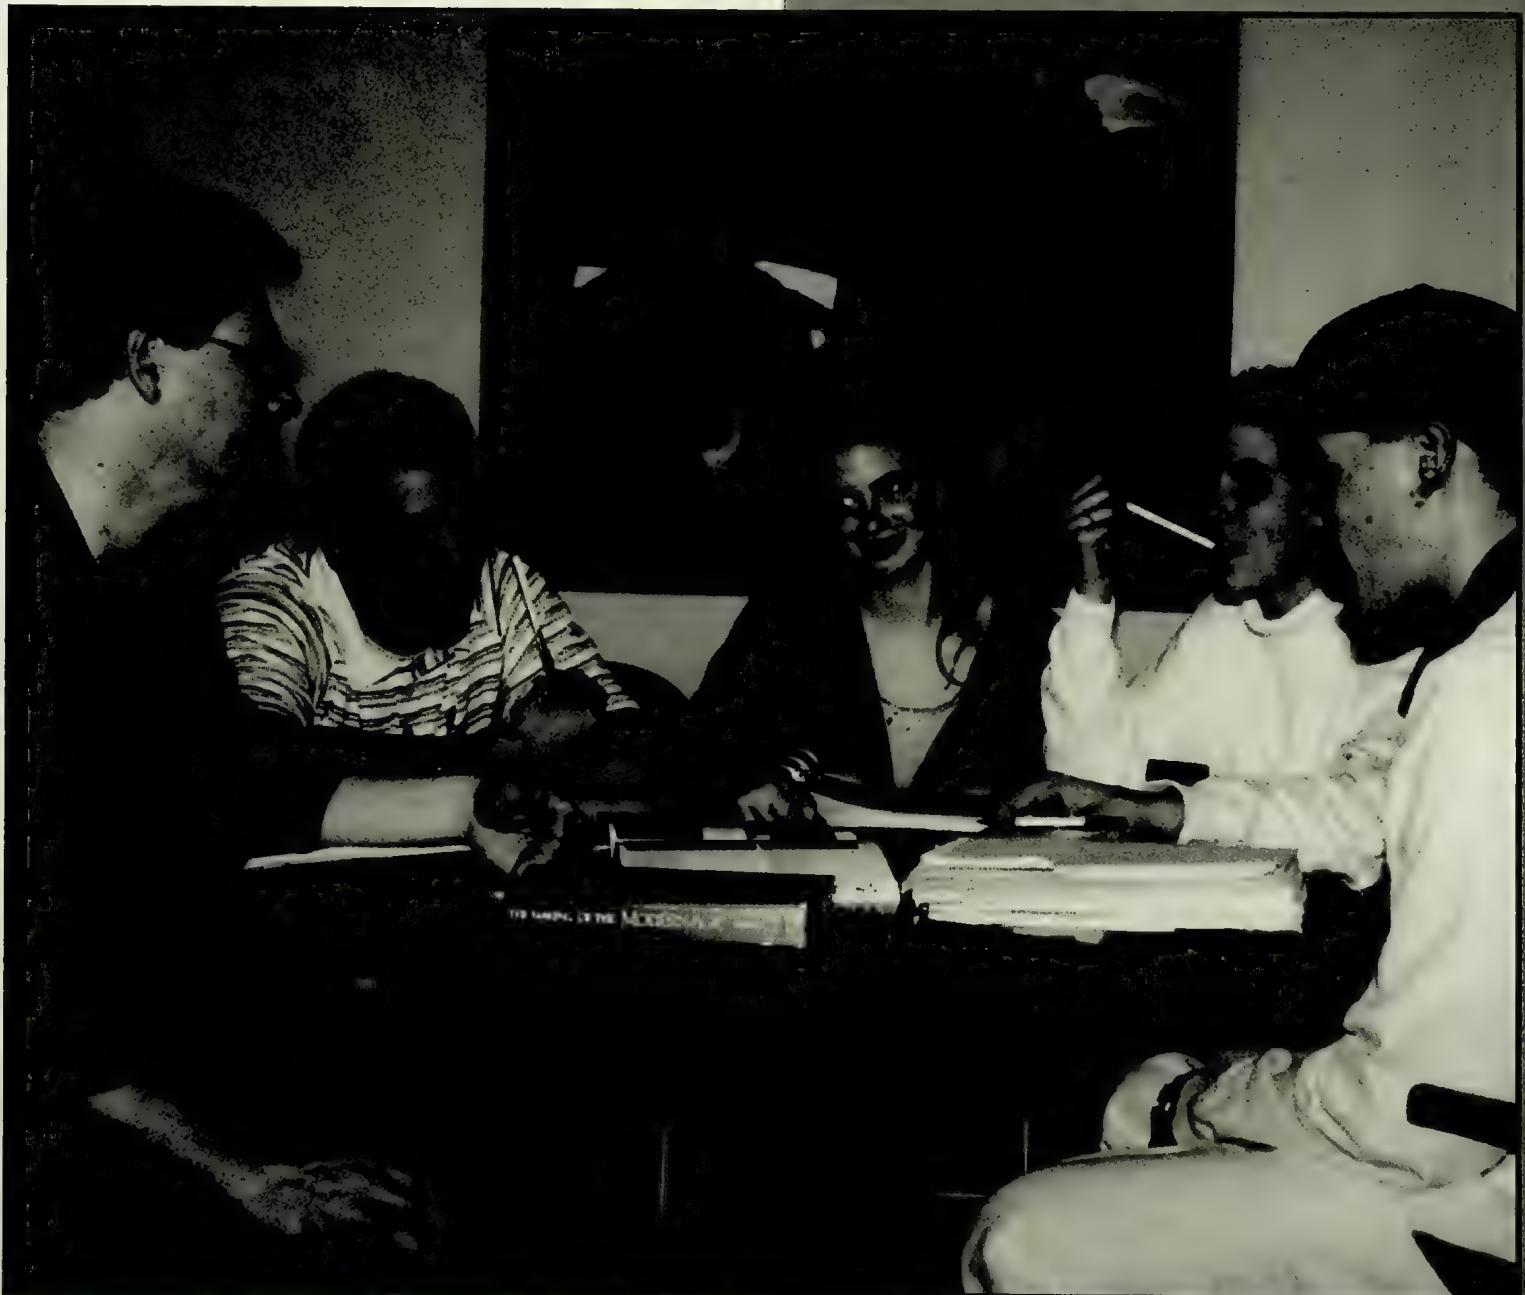

No guts, no glory. Ryan Harcus completes the Biology pig dissection.

With precision and accuracy, Lauren MacDonald and Lisa Lemieux attempt to complete a Science 10 lab.

SHAKESPEARE AND HISTORY

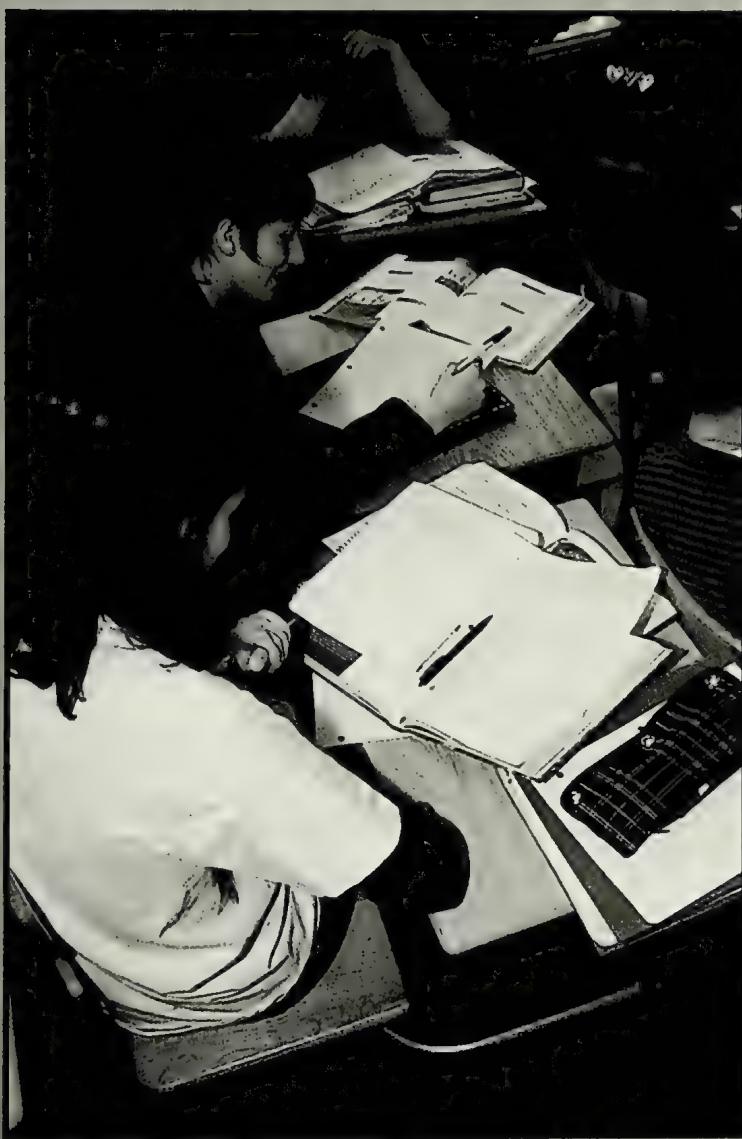

Although Scona students can choose a variety of courses from which to take, they all have one thing in common: core subjects. In order to graduate, each Lord must take courses in Science, Math, English, and Social. Strathcona has gone to new heights in the past few years, offering creative writing courses and academic challenge classes for both English and Social Studies.

In 1995, a humanities class was first offered combining both courses and showing relevance between history and literature. The class success has resulted in Humanities 10, 20, and 30 scheduled for the 1996/97 year.

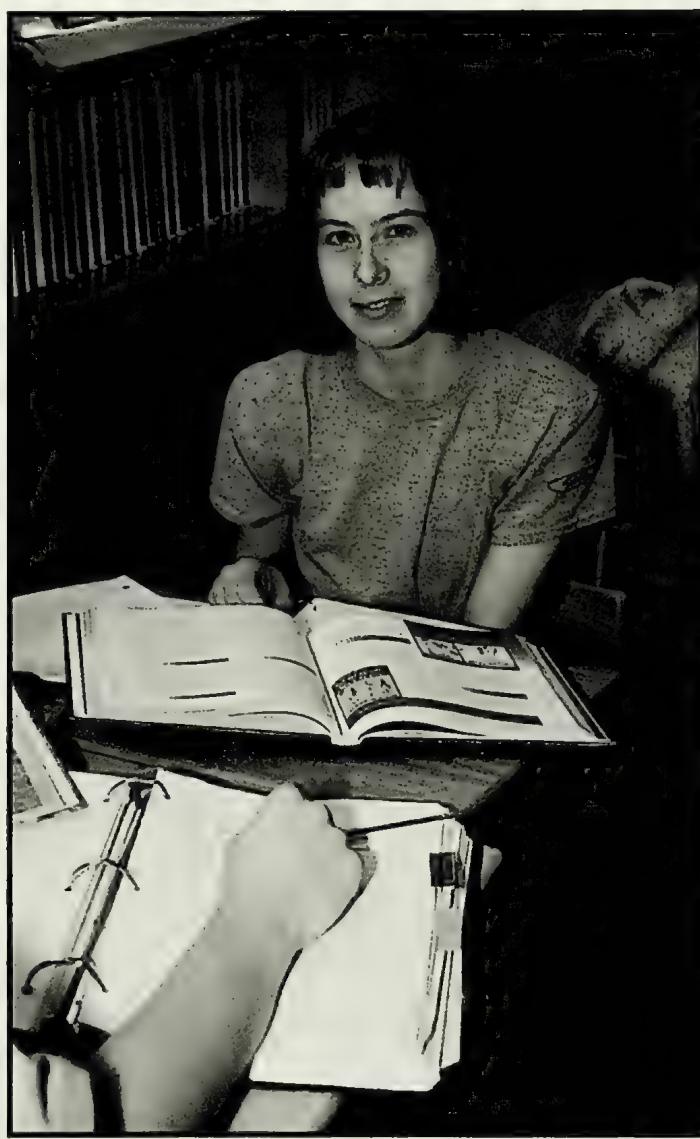

Scona's pride can extend to cover both English and Social Studies accomplishments as well as athletics. The school's diploma exam marks far exceed the city and provincial averages. A handful of the best teachers in the province as well as eager students will definitely keep this proud tradition alive.

Hard at work, Audrey Hanna, and Camille Buzzo appear to be busy for the benefit of their Social mark.

When studying for any subject, Pam Trask proves that anyone could use a hand from their friends.

CREATIVE THOUGHTS

Strathcona offers several programs in visual and performing arts and various languages, opening up new opportunities to the students.

Drama, taught by Ms. Blanchard, gives students experience while learning about the more technical aspects of acting. Upon graduating Drama 30, students are given the honor of having their name join other Scona drama graduates on the stage's wall.

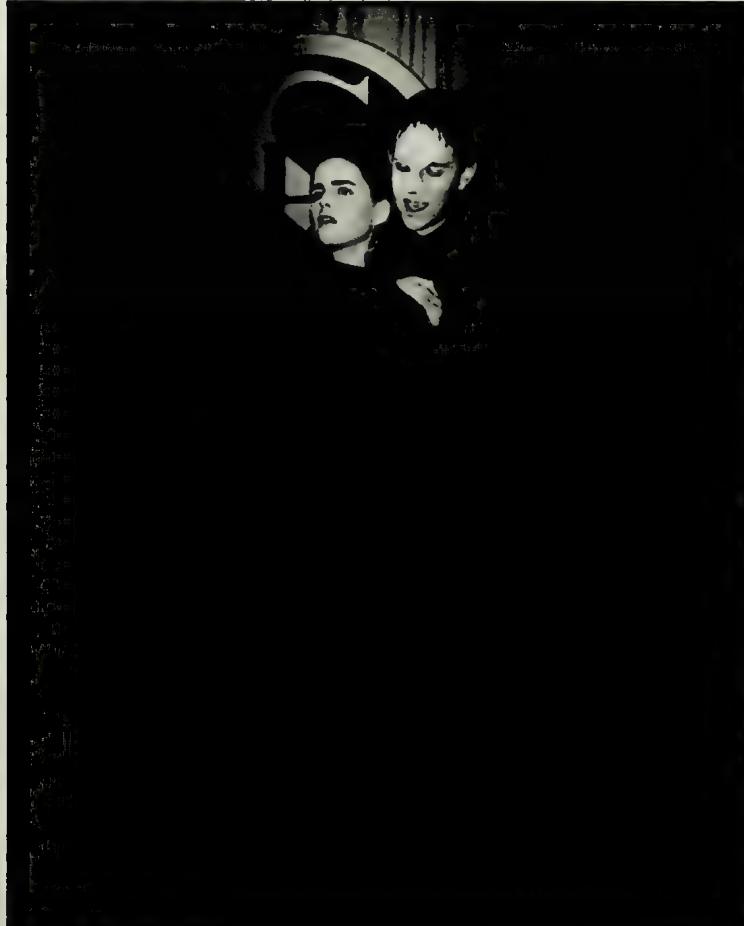

The various languages offered at Scona are French, German, and Spanish. While Spanish only has one level of difficulty, French and German are both offered in beginner and advanced levels.

Scona's Bands are lead by Mr. Klause, which performed 4-5 times this year. Young musicians have the opportunity to join either the Junior Band, Senior Band, or the Jazz Band.

Art is taught by Mr. Drever, who teaches students about the techniques and various styles. At the end of Art 30, students are given the chance to build their own frames and stretch canvas. This year, the Senior class also took the challenge of restoring old furniture.

Tracy Thomas is consumed by Mike Ford's phantom.

Adam Langer helps to keep Bilingualism alive here at Scona.

Matt Peppler perfects his still life composition.

Christie Jensen happily plays her flute during yet another band class.

NOT JUST AN OPTION...

In today's society, it has become increasingly vital for students to stay a top the ever growing technology of the business world. By offering several business courses such as Accounting, Computer Processing, Word Processing, and Law, Scona is helping its students prepare for the competitive world of the market.

In Accounting, students evolve from learning the basics of debits and credits to balancing the books of small businesses, while down the hall, sounds of students renouncing the time honored tradition of two finger typing are emitting from the Typewriting 10 class. In Law, one learns the fundamentals of the court, while being encouraged to strengthen their methods of debate. But perhaps the most emphasis is placed on students to learn computers due to the work forces' increasing dependency on bytes, modems, and hard drives.

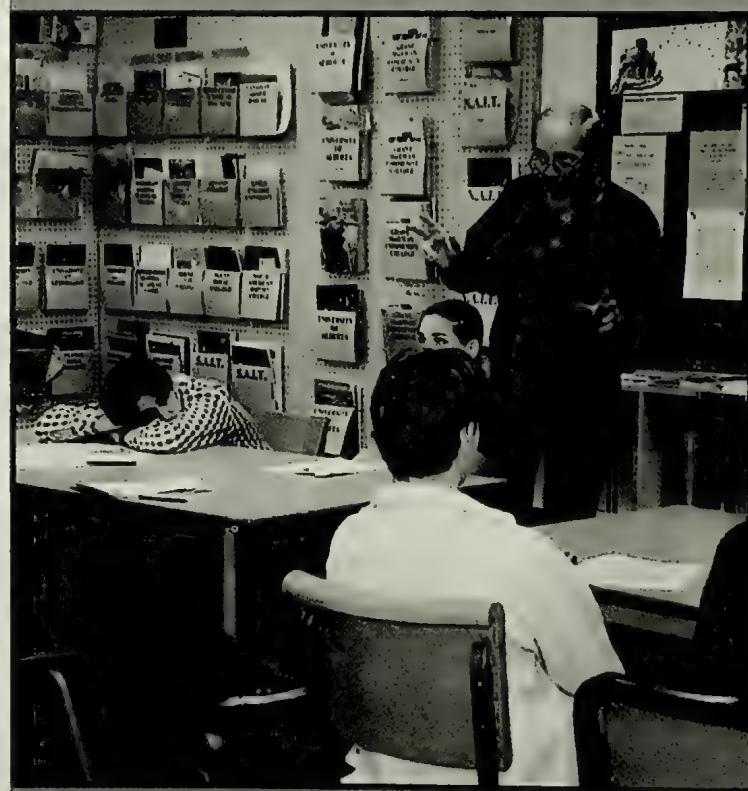

Yet, although business related skills are beneficial, one must not overlook the importance of tactful work. Industrial Arts and Home Economics offer students a well deserved break from the standard classroom settings, and encourage students to expand their imagination and creativity. Courses such as Car Care, and Photography allows one to view problems at different angles and perspectives, while Food Studies deals with health, the body, and culinary techniques. These classes provide students with everyday knowledge that will prove useful when they finally venture into the world of independence.

The one course requirement that draws the moist groans is CALM, which officially stands for Career And Life Management. Although this curriculum is mandatory, in reality, this class serves as a helpful tool to provide necessary information to today's generation. CALM teaches the importance of health, social skills, budgeting, planning, and the factors of "moving out". The most vital unit, however, is the one on human sexuality. Sex ed. stresses the importance of maintaining our bodies, and the factors and consequences of teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. This course deals with preparing teenagers for the realities of society. Although many deem this course to be a pure waste of a spare, it offers practical advice and information that could help guide students through any future difficulties which they may encounter.

The finest aspect of Home Economics is eating the final results, as demonstrated by Julianne Betke.

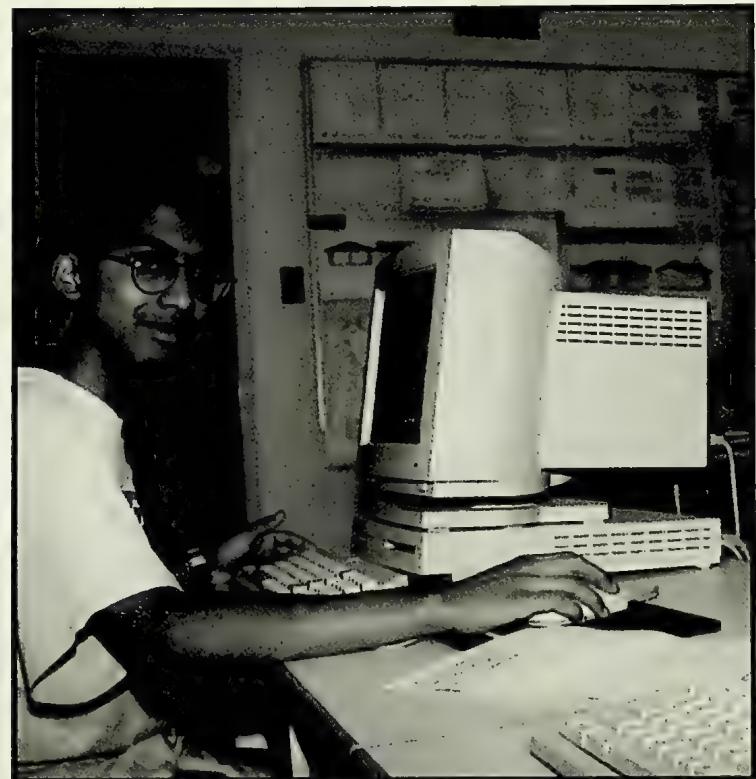

Mr. Manson teaches a sleepy CALM class about careers.

Surfing the net, Chris Alexander explores the info highway at high speed.

PULLING TOGETHER

The 1996 yearbook staff is pleased to congratulate the 1995 staff on their national award winning yearbook. Unfortunately this yearbook cannot win the same award, as the competition is not being held this year. However, everyone involved has worked hard to create one of the best yearbooks.

As last year's yearbook ushered out Mr. Woodrow, advisor for ten years, this year's staff is almost entirely new. We have struggled to exceed the quality of last year's version, and with some missed deadlines and plenty of corrections, we believe we have.

Continuing the tradition of excellence is due to students' dedication as they strive to achieve or exceed the high standards that previous students have set. As in track, cross-country and swimming we want to ensure that we continue the tradition of being a winning team.

As editor, I would like to thank the rest of the outstanding yearbook staff, especially the following: Gladys (Junior Editor), Beayue (Journalistic Editor), Catherine and Jenny, who made extra time to reach deadlines, often working on weekends and after school. I would also like to thank our new yearbook advisors, Mr. Gerun, and Ms. Bowen, for all the time and effort they put into finding and correcting our many 'typos' and errors.

I take great pleasure in handing over the yearbook torch to next year's eager team.

-Eric Matheson-Jones.

LEADING THE PACK

STUDENTS' UNION

The past year has been a very successful one for the Students' Union. With the goal of unceasing student involvement in all activities, Students' Union kicked off the year with Welcome Week activities which included a barbecue and the first dance of the year. Various other dances along with several lunch hour activities comprised Scona's S.U. activities that occur from year to year. Special events this year included the 2nd Annual International Week, which was a week filled with different speakers, cultures, and foods, that emphasized the diversity of Canada's multiculturalism. This week proved to be extremely successful in the areas of cultural awareness and a reinforcement of the merits of global understanding. Thank you for the continued faith and support of Strathcona's Students' Union.

GRAD COUNCIL

This year's Grad Council was larger than those in the past, a reflection of the desire to make Grad '96 a huge success... and it was. The Members of Grad Council became fast friends despite the tension and stress that inevitably comes with the planning of large events. A series of fundraising event was the Grad Silent Auction; it was a fun and successful evening, well worth the work put into it. For many of the Council members, "Grad" brought to mind an endless string of meetings, whose locations were never known until the last second. "Grad" also brought to mind the dreaded fundraising task of all: collecting pop cans from sticky white buckets clearly labeled "Pop Cans Only" but containing an abundance of rotting food and used tissues. A reward for their dedication, however, came with the much anticipated Taste Meal at the Convention Centre. Members sampled salads, entrees, and desserts: everybody left stuffed and content despite the brawl that nearly broke out over which drink to serve at Banquet. With a new teacher advisor and all new Council members, Grad Council was sometimes unclear on all that had to be done. However, hard work and determination made it all come together in the end, and Grad '96 was a definite success.

PLAYING WITH STYLE

Every Tuesday at lunch, the sound of earnest young musicians practicing can be heard echoing through the far North-West hallway. It is the Scona Junior Band, a hardworking group composed of 50 Grade Ten students.

Traveling far from their Scona Christmas Concert debut, this group has attended the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra Concert, and competed in the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival. The year ended on a high note when the band performed at the Red Deer Provincial Music Festival in May, and the Year End Concert in June.

As Maestro Klause would so commonly say, "Holy schnitzel bunk!"

SENIOR BAND

Under the direction of Mr. Klause, the Scona Senior Band has had a prosperous year.

This year, the Senior Band attended the Edmonton Orchestra's Education performance, and various Grade Twelve musicians also had the honour to perform at the annual "Night of Music" at the Jubilee Auditorium.

The X-mas concert was a great success with the collaboration of all three Scona bands. The band also performed at the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival, and Banff's Festival Canada.

Scona's music programme continues to grow, inspire, and entertain all who are a part of Scona.

Sarah Barber, Jay Spadafora, and Dave Clark play in unison.

SNAPPIN' SOUND

This has been an extraordinary year for the Scona Jazz Band, an extracurricular organization composed of mainly brass and percussion musicians. The Jazz Band performed at various functions including the Christmas Concert, guest starring Juno award winning P.J. Perry, and at the Edmonton Jazzworks Festival in February. The Jazz Band has proven to be great musical ambassadors, for not only Strathcona, but Edmonton as well.

This year highlights included performances at the Yardbird Suite, the Alberta Stage and Concert Band Festival in March, and the Rocky Mountain Music Festival in Banff. The Jazz Band was also invited back to Festival Canada in Banff for a second performance.

Although a student's time may be preoccupied with studies and other activities, the enormous commitment and obvious dedication of these young musicians will insure that the high quality and success of Scona's bands will continue throughout the years ahead.

The trumpets play in perfect uniform.

SPREADING THE NEWS

RADIO CLUB

As you may have heard "We are not a member of the Canadian Broadcast Standards Council and as such are not committed to bring you, the listener, the highest quality entertainment and informational programs..."

We control the vertical. We control the horizontal. We can expand a single musical expression to crystal clarity, at least as much as the P.A. system will allow. Despite this, the Radio Club makes its presence felt before school and during lunch. Nobody quite understands why people commit the time and face the public ridicule that comes with being a Lord's DJ. For some members, it's the love of music that leads them to join. For most though, it's the hate of anyone else's music. The one thing that does unite us, however, is the radio club illustrious leader, Mr. Yeske. "Cheers to all y'all out there in Scona radioland."

LIP (LORDS IN PRINT)

ShaaBANG!!! There is no better word than that to describe the tremendous success of the Lords In Print in its second year of production. The LIP crew published 4 issues of the paper as well as a Special Edition for the annual Strathcona Open House. Here's a look at some of the more memorable articles of the year: Quebec Separation Debate in the fall (the same issue on which there was a bright Red Canadian Leaf stamped on the front cover carrying the slogan "Keep It Together Canada"); the issue of Arts vs. Sports at Scona; Fish Heads & Flowers; all those silly internet XX ways to do YYYYYY entries (e.g. Fun Things To Do When Driving, 45 Fun Ways To Take An Exam That Does Not Matter, Top 19 Comebacks to "Do you know how fast you were going?", Why Did The Chicken Cross The Road? and Flatulence); the Comic Section (e.g. Mighty Morphine Power Rangers and Making Your Own Flippin' Comics); Sexism In Scona Sports; Scona's Bravest Man; The Politically Correct Night Before Christmas; The Grad '96 Page; Scona's Old; Process Followed By Admin. In Regards to S.U. Called Into Question (this article got the LIP into a lot of trouble); Rent A Room; ETSucks; and of course the President's Column, The Sports Section, Entertainment Section and Clubs and Community. All in all, this year's staff has been fabulous indeed. Their commitment to the LIP as well as to the school is

SCAM

This was yet another productive year for Scona's Communications and Media club. The club was responsible for alerting the community as to the events taking place at the school, and President Shelly Lidke made sure everything went smoothly. Mrs. St. Cyr coordinated this small group of enthusiastic individuals, and the results proved to be fantastic. At the beginning of every month, the SCAM club put up a new display board with a collage of pictures of student activities. Also, one outstanding student per month was presented with the prestigious Lord Award in recognition of their achievements. The SCAM club also serves as a medium between the school and parents by helping with the publication of the school newsletter. These busy-bodies proved to be an integral part in sharing Scona with the outside community.

SCONA PRIDE

Since Scona Pride was first started four years ago it has gained recognition inside and outside the school. This year Scona Pride members have kept the tradition going by continuing to help the drama year play, basketball tournament, Festival of Trees, Volunteer Fair, and being in charge of the Santa Sit. This year the club has done the Second Annual Easter Basket raffle as well. As usual it was a wonderful success. All proceeds went to the Children's Health Foundation in support of the Scona - U of A Hospital partnership. And speaking of the partnership, this year members held the very first teddy bear drive, in which students bought bears for $5 and then donated them to the children who had to spend Christmas in the hospital. Another premiere was the Computer Tournament, which consisted of skill and a whole lot of fun. It was quite a busy year for the students and staff involved. Thanks goes out to Mrs. Nelson, Ms. Von Stackelberg, and Mrs. McBride.

Mr. Bentruude, Beth Allen, Kyle Wilson, Michael Walker, Paul Herrington, Matt Adamczyk, Jason Leung, Mr. Golightly

In the 1995-96 year, the organization of Awards changed from being handled by one person to being administered by a committee consisting of students, two teachers and a parent volunteer. The committee worked well together to make a few changes in the actual Awards night - Kaleidoscope '96. It was determined that the accomplishments of Scona's students consist of not only academics, athletics and service but also in music, drama, and art. Consequently, musical performances before, during, and after the program were included. A display of student artistic endeavours was enjoyed by all who stopped by the small gym for refreshments.

DEBATE

For several years Debate members have met weekly to examine which tournaments to enter and give speeches to each other for preparation of the tournaments. Such competitions were mock trials, model legislature, and speech competitions. As there were a variety of tournaments year round, one of the highlights was the Churchill Debate, in which Veer Gidwaney and Don Iveson placed first place. Veer Gidwaney also won in the Rotary Club Speech Competition. This year, and for many more to come, members will continue to enhance their persuasive abilities.

COMPUTER CLUB

This has been a wonderful year for Scona's Computer Club. Members of the club met every Wednesday to work on assignments and programs, send electronic mail, cruise the information highway, and explore the world of multimedia. In the case of accessing the Internet, there are plans to have it installed on all stations in the lab this year, allowing all members to surf the net. With the fascinating and broader technologies this year, computer club members continue to excel in the world of knowledge.

MATH CLUB

For the past years, Scona students have displayed their excellence not just athletically, but academically. Such competitions like the Canadian National Math League Contest and the Alberta High School Math Contest showed students' abilities with complicated math questions. In the Alberta High School Contest, Martin Chan, Rob Wray, Vilkesh Kohli, and Rob Koyich were placed fifth in the province. Other competitions were the Cayley for grade 10, Fermat for grade 11, Euclid for grade 12, and Descartes Math Contest. The top score in grade 10 was achieved by Kwok Hung Choy, and for grade 11 by Peter Kaechele. Every year Scona has Math week filled with math related activities, contest, prizes, and speakers. Within the week, students get to experience how math is used in society as well as finding out something fun about mathematics. In some cases, there were speakers coming in to talk about the subject, while there were math problems everyday of the week. As Scona students continue to demonstrate their talents in the activities and competition, they carry on Scona's academic excellence.

SCIENCE OLYMPICS

This year's Science Olympics was a great success. Although team members did not place in three of the five events, they still acquired a bronze medal for the bridge truss and a gold medal in the Chemystery event. In the popsicle stick truss, the objective was to construct a cantilever truss that could hold the greatest load. The winner would be the team that predicts the greatest load and in fact, hold this weight. As for the Chemystery event, it was merely a simple chemistry experiment, where participants must design an experiment to solve a problem and then write a lab report explaining each step. With the guidance of Mr. Golightly and Mr. Benterud, this year's team has excelled in a challenge that will continue throughout the coming years.

Judging time! Robbie Koyich awaits anxiously as the judges test the structure for weight capacity.

FEARLESS ENDEAVOURS

INTERMURALS

After being dormant from the Scona scene for the past few years, the intramural program has returned with a vengeance. Headed up by Ms. Fearey and Mr. Anderson, those dismal lunch hours became a talent showcase full of fun and good sports. Teams got together to play volleyball, 3-on-3 basketball, floor hockey, and indoor soccer. Student involvement in all of these activities was phenomenal, and those who were not athletically inclined were given the opportunity to sit in the bleachers and watch the fun unfold. This was an excellent form of recreation for everybody, including the teams of teachers who participated.

SKI CLUB

As an extra-curricular activity, Scona Ski and Snowboard club is an organization that is very popular among the Scona population. Numbering in at over forty students, this year the club made two mountain trips and held preliminary practices at our very own 'Rabbit Hill'. The first trip was in February, where eager students journeyed via bus to beautiful British Columbia to enjoyed the powder-packed slopes of Fernie. Later in the spring, a second trip was made to Banff, where students had a chance to ski some of the longest and most breathtaking runs in Alberta. The trip was a great success, and snow-boarders and skiers alike returned with tans and wind-burn.

Skiing can be hazardous to your health, as proven by Justin Childs after a little accident at Fernie.

Just one of the many mountain trips the ski club went on this year was to Fernie.

Principal's Message

Strathcona's history extends back to 1907 and includes the traditions of Garneau High School, University High School and Strathcona Collegiate Institute. This year we celebrated the 40th anniversary of Strathcona Composite High School with current and former students and staff, as well as parents and other members of our community. This celebration provided everyone with an opportunity to reflect on our long history of student achievement, accomplishments and service to the community. The result is that we have all been reminded again that we are proud to be associated with a very special school.

Strathcona students have continued to excel in 1995-96 with outstanding achievements in academics, athletics, fine arts and community service. Our special atmosphere which emphasizes school spirit, friendliness, caring and hard study also continues to be an important feature of Strathcona.

I would like to express my appreciation and congratulations to the year-book staff for producing this excellent record of Strathcona's 1995-96 school year.

RETIREMENTS

After 33 years of teaching at Stratcona, Mr. Golightly has decided to put down his chalk. Since beginning his teaching career at Scona in 1963, Mr. Golightly has taught math, science, chemistry, and of course, physics. He has coached the Science Olympics team since the competition began approximately twenty years ago, and was the science department head for several years until the end of last year.

As the thousands of students who have gone through his classes can attest, Mr. Golightly was not your average teacher. This may be due in some part to the 300 kg kumquats and his unique sense of humor. His warm personality and great work in the classroom will certainly be missed.

After many years of service in the library, Mrs. Gerling is also retiring. Staff and students extend their best wishes to both of these valuable staff members as they begin their retirements.

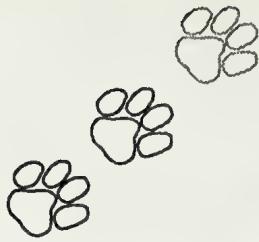

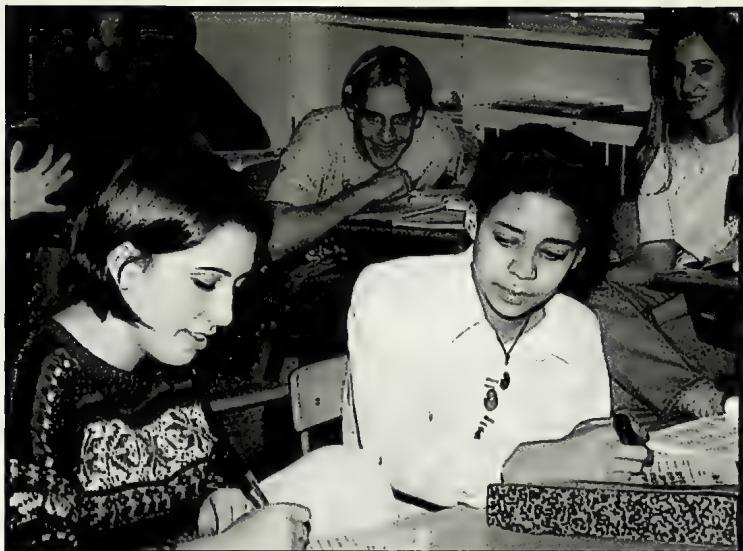

Science at Scona will never be the same without you, Mr. Golightly!

TRANSITIONS

What transitions/changes have you noticed going from Grade Nine to High School?

More voices! Oh my Gawd! Those hideous voices...help me! Oh my Gawd! Oh, sorry, those are the teachers.

-Wilson Kwan

There are way more people to meet and to talk to. There are also more people with same interests as me, and there are more parties!

-Jay Spadafora

There are semesters, and a bigger school.

-Melissa Podfield

Bigger school, more people, and more anonymity.

-Alexis Desrosiers

I have less time than I did before.

-Dana Pollon

Harder to adjust. It's harder to "fit in" with people.

-Katie Lee Thompson

The maturity level is way lower...I mean higher.

-Courtney Campbell

Made new friends and kept most of my old ones.

-Taavi Burns

All of a sudden, I'm not the tallest one in the school.

-Alyssa Norman

You are able to make many new friends!

-Nicole Kelly

Longer breaks, freedom/independence, and more acceptance of age differences.

-Christie Jensen

More sports commitments, more school spirit, and less "cliques".

SPEED LIMIT: UNKNOWN

The information super highway has taken 1995 by storm. That's right, put your seatbelt and helmet on because we are going on the increasingly faster and always growing information highway. The freenet is now available connecting us to libraries and to other people through e-mail. The internet has become increasingly popular this year. Through the internet, people can now do research without leaving their homes or checking out numerous (and heavy) books. More and more establishments, institutions and corporations, not to mention individuals, are establishing their own home page, including everything from the Louvre to X-Files.

Communication is now faster and the latest news about various countries and even Edmonton is now at your fingertips. With all the possibilities, there is speculation that people will soon not even have to leave their homes. The internet allows you to shop, travel to exotic destinations and make new friends without moving from the front of your home computer.

Even our very own Scona Library is showing signs of this modern, new age technology. The library now has sixteen computers available and hooked up to the internet. It is also undergoing it's first full inventory in forty years. Now instead of having a card catalogue, we can look forward to having the books listed in the computers.

This year many people have gained great insight into what is possible. No more volumes of heavy research books, now it is one click away. What is next, you ask? Maybe visual telephone communication? Who knows? Anything is possible.

Fine tuning her surfing skills, Ms. Stiles scans through the Internet.

MORE O.J.?

Yes, it was a phenomena that swept even Scona. A phenomena that will hopefully never occur again.

That's right, the O.J. Simpson murder trial... It was Tuesday, October 3, the hour is 10:55 a.m. The bell sounds for lunch, but food is not on the mind of these students. No, it was the verdict of the trial. The verdict that was suppose to be announced at 11:00 a.m. Thus instead of reaching for their lunches many students reached for their walkmans, and those without stayed attached to someone with one.

The hallways were quieter than usual, you could almost say freaky, and that one person that went around denying interest in the verdict was unanimously told to be quiet. As we listened, Judge Lance Ito entered the courtroom, followed by the jury, and then Simpson. Minutes tick away as the charges were laid and then the verdict was read. Moaning and disbelief was felt by some, and joy and happiness by others as Orenthal James Simpson was found not guilty on all accounts, by a jury that took only 4 hours to decide one man's fate. Later on that lunch hour, walking down the hallway, all that was talked about was the Simpson mania.

Everyone had their own point of view about who was right or wrong, and for the rest of the day and for days to come, the concept of justice was questioned. The "Trial of the Century" was finally over, and one was undecided as to what to do. Emotions swayed between disgust and relief. Instead of the murder, the subject of a corrupt L.A.P.D., and racism soon became the limelight topic in Los Angeles. Despite the trials and tribulations that occurred during this 15 month event, those who glamourized the courtroom drama, must remember that this world has lost the lives of Nicole Simpson Brown, and Ron Goldman. That is the real tragedy behind this Hollywood melodrama.

Scona's drama students act out a mock trial in the play, "The Ringers of Eldrich".

LENDING A HAND

This year, Scona Lords have participated actively in the community. For several years, Strathcona has been linked in a partnership with the University of Alberta Hospital where Strathcona students have tutored hospital patients and staff members. An extension of this was the first annual Teddy Bear Drive where students brought $5 bears with get well cards to brighten the spirits of the sick children who had to stay in the hospital for the holidays.

Whether it is during school time or not, many students have also used their free time to dedicate themselves to charity events such as the Aids Walk for Life or the Walk for Multiple Sclerosis. In each case, students have contributed time, effort and care, in an attempt to serve the community as a whole, or certain individuals.

Recently, fifteen year old Peter Jang was fighting for his life against a rare case of acute lymphoblastic leukemia. Although this form of cancer is at the moment incurable, Peter's father found news of an experiment in the United States, that may have saved his son's life. Due to a lack of funds, however, the Alberta government would not provide the needed $100,000 for the experimental treatment. Along with thousands of contributors, Scona set up a donation box during their graduation banquet asking parents and students for cash or cheques. This local tragedy fueled the generosity of the surrounding community and all were touched by one boy's basic fight to live. Though Edmontonians succeed in raising almost $125,000, Peter was unable to travel due to his rapidly depleting health, and on June 8, lost the battle against cancer.

While this story ended in sadness, Scona Lords once again realized the necessity of aiding those in need. Sconians are more than willing to take on any cause when the need arises.

CANADA'S WARNING SIGN

On the eve of October 30, 1995, Canada, a country that has existed for over 128 years, that has grown to become one of the world's most highly regarded and prestigious nations, came within an arm's reach of shattering.

It is hard to believe that this sacred country, one that is known universally for tolerance and multiculturalism, could be swept up in a fight over race, religion, culture, and language. In the final hour, this country's fate was decided by a mere 53 498 Canadians out of a total of the 4 669 554 Quebecois who voted. It was this number of votes that allowed the No side, led by Quebec Liberal Leader Daniel Johnson, to overcome the Yes forces of Quebec Premier Jacques Parizeau, 50.6% to 49.4%.

Although the No side achieved the most votes in this political race, the Quebec referendum should not be seen as a victory or a defeat by either party, but as a warning sign. A sign that Canadians possess strong, diverse, and highly conflicting opinions towards their country, opinions which have torn this country into two. But one cannot dwell on what lay in the past, but instead look to what the future holds. Out of this unclear and hazy predicament, Canadians and Quebecois alike have been given a second chance to rebuild this country into the great state it is capable of becoming. The status quo is no longer sufficient, and change is in order. But one must view all avenues of choice with caution, for Canada has opened Pandora's Box and is now blindly struggling to see what lays in the aftermath.

The Quebec referendum which began in doubt and ended in uncertainties, has pushed into the limelight what had formerly been taken for granted by every citizen - unity. It is this idea that Canadians must now concentrate on to build a future for their country, one that will be abundant with opportunity, diversity, freedom, and long lasting peace.

REFLECTIONS ON ITALY

As we descended into Edmonton all eyes turned to the windows of the airplane. Our first reactions were "Look at all the snow!", but our seconds thoughts were "I wish we were back in Italy." As the ground grew larger in the windows, our minds began to reveal images of an unforgettable trip in Belle Italia.....

Our first little taste of Italy took place in the romantic city of Venice. We spent only one day there, however, we still managed to see many attractions! During the first portion of the day we toured Dodge's Palace to St. Maria Basilica.

Next it was off to Florence, the city with the best gelato (ice cream)! Naturally, Florence had far more to offer than ice cream and we were fortunate enough to see the main sights. Again, we only had one day in Florence, so the morning was filled with tours of the Duomo, the Medici Palace and the tombs of Michael Angelo and Galelio. In the afternoon we separated to partake in various interesting sights such as the Ufizi Gallery, and the Boboli Gardens.

Finally we journeyed to Rome, the heart of human civilization. Three wonderful days were spent touring such attractions as the Sistine Chapel, St. Peter's Basilica, the Coliseum, the Pantheon and the Catacombs. Many of us also "shopped until we dropped", taking advantage of Rome's cheaper prices and exclusive shops.

A solemn feeling was among us as we watched the shores of Italy grow smaller from our jumbo jet heading back to Canada. Desperately we wanted to stay longer to explore the paintings, sculptures, monuments and magnificent architecture, and yet it was a relief to be going home to share our fabulous experience with our families and friends. Belle Italia stayed true to her name providing us with an experience none of us will ever forget.

KALEIDOSCOPE OF STYLE

The vogue of today is one where anything is acceptable. The tweed jackets of the 50's, bellbottoms of the 60's, platforms of the 70's, and sharp lines and angles of the 80's have integrated together with rages of the 90's to create a montage of outfits.

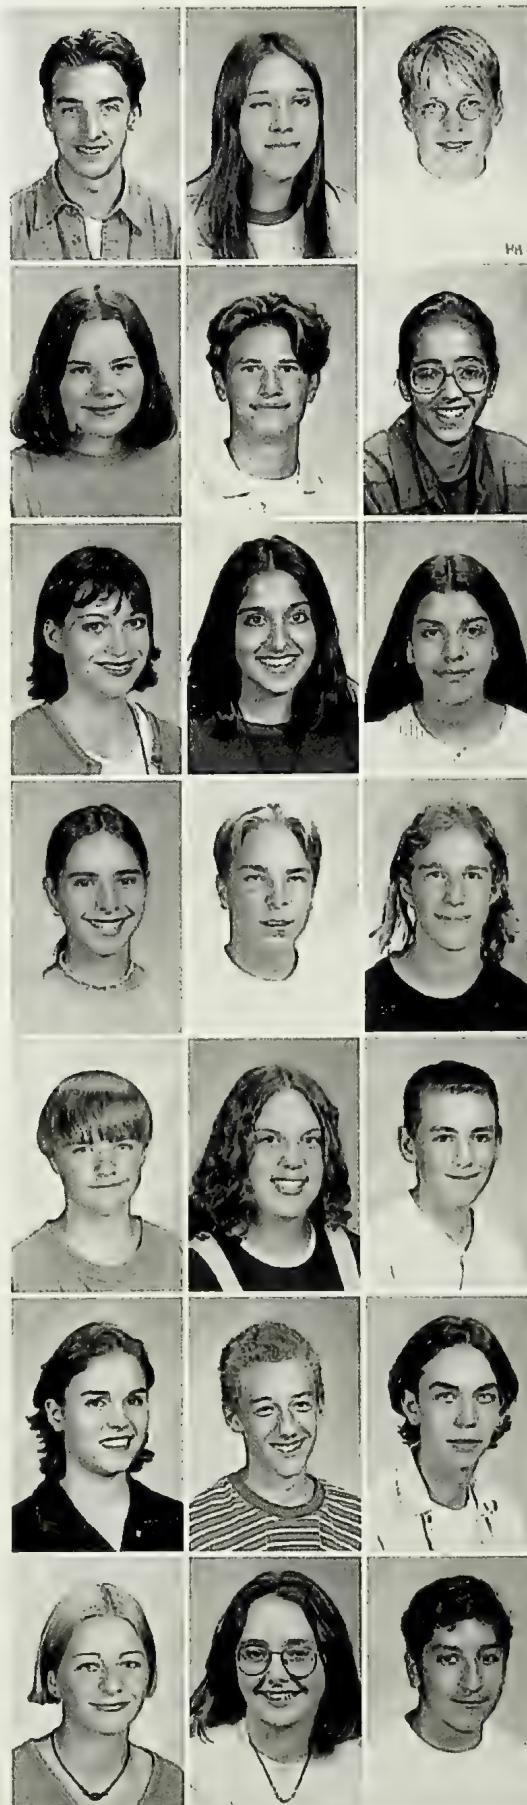

One of the most unusual rages of the 90's was grunge. People would go for days without a shower wearing the same outfit for weeks, allowing their hair to self-curl into greasy dreadlocks. Often people would purchase products to speed along this process. This trend slowly evolved into a tough skater look. Tattooing and body piercing became as popular as Kool-Aid dyed hair.

But soon, one became tired of wearing jeans that were 5 sizes too big, over boxers. Teens switched to the sexy baby boarding school look. Navy jackets, pleated skirts, Mary Janes, jellies, and thigh high nylons, often accompanied by garters. At the same time, the coffee house trend started to boom. Males were often seen sporting goatees and suit jackets. Cappuccino became the flavour of the year.

While the above fashions have and will slowly began to fade into the background, a new style has become synonymous with the present. One where the emphasis on simplicity is overwhelming. But today's style is not simply about clothes. Intelligence and being socially conscious is equally important, if not more so. It is indeed fashionable to wear a ribbon displaying one's concern, such as red for AIDS, pink for breast cancer, and blue for freedom of speech on the internet. Smart is sexy.

While fads are short lived and impulsive, hopefully this style will not fade from the limelight, but continue to grow, urging fashion to go beyond superficial looks, to act as a statement for this generation.

Marianne Guilbert displays not only talent, but a style all of her own at this years Christmas L.O.T.

DE-KLEIN OF EDUCATION

Finance in education has always been important, but never more so than today. With our current economy, it is clear that you either have it or you don't, and in many cases with Alberta's schools, we don't. That is because of Alberta's Premier, Ralph Klein, slashing funding, which would almost be laughable if they were not done in such a rash manner.

Parents and students became outraged earlier this year, rallying and protesting in organized groups as Ralph Klein tried to completely cut funding for Kindergarten. Thankfully, things have not gotten so far out of hand in the higher levels of education, or have they? The students wishing to retake diploma exams must now pay over $25 for the privilege, and starting next year, students wishing to retake Grade 12 for upgrading purposes will have to pay for that as well.

The cuts in funding to the University of Alberta, as well as many other respected institutions have become drastic, forcing the price of advanced education to heights that many high school graduates find difficult to accept. Once finishing with the pressure of diploma exams, we have the problems of finance to contend with, if we wish to continue schooling.

Of course, the massive funding cuts to education cannot be entirely blamed on Ralph Klein's "heroic?" effort to reduce the provincial debt. Ottawa made public on March 6, during the reading of the Official Federal Budget Plan, that the money allotted to the provinces will continue to decrease for several more years to come. With less to work with, it is no wonder that money for publicly funded education is something hard to come by. Unfortunately, understanding does not make things any easier for the students, parents and teachers who have to cope with the additional burden of having less financial assistance.

Facing school cutbacks, Pauline Perreault prepares for increasing competition.

EDMONTON WELCOMES THE WORLDS

It was a spectacular week for the World Figure Skaters when it began on Sunday, March 17, 1996, with the opening ceremonies that presented a visual splendour to the city. As the week went by from the Qualifying Rounds to the Free Skates, the crowds kept on wanting more. The standing ovations erupted especially when Quad King, Elvis Stojko performed for the judges and during his practice routines. Even though Stojko fell in his short program, he made an excellent comeback in his long program where he placed from seventh to fourth and to this day he still remains a Canadian legend.

Today there are younger skaters on the ice than ever before. In particular was fifteen year old Michelle Kwan, of the United States, who received the Women's gold, while her teammate, Todd Eldredge, claimed the Men's gold. These powerful, yet talented skaters have really made their mark in Edmonton, just as the Russian skater, Ilia Kulik, did.

As a matter of fact, during the whole week the World Village was provided where people could watch the skaters perform while having a snack or two. However, the most memorable and favoured event was the Parade of Champions that celebrated the past and future of skating. Stars from Barbara Ann Scott and Don Jackson through the 90's with Kurt Browning and Elvis Stojko were featured. In fact, our very own Kurt Browning was to perform for the opening and closing ceremonies, but was ultimately denied this honour by the International Skating Union. But before the week was over, with the help of many supporters and fans, Kurt was finally allowed to skate for the finale.

Although the week was soon over, with the closing ceremonies being held on Sunday, March 24, 1996, the Championships definitely left behind a mark in Edmonton and an impression on the world.

QUEBEC EXCHANGE STUDENTS

During the first semester of the 1995-1996 school year Scona had the good fortune to welcome two exchange students from Quebec: Marie-Claude Roy and Lydie Morneau. These two young Quebecers turned up in late September and remained with us until the first week in December. While in Edmonton, they lived at the homes of Peter Feldstein and Natalie Fenske.

Our memories of Marie-Claude and Lydie will be forever linked to the historic October 1995 referendum on Quebec sovereignty. The two girls arrived here as fellow Canadians, but came very close to leaving Alberta as foreigners. On referendum day, October 30th, only a few thousand votes enabled Quebec to remain in Canada and Lydie and Marie-Claude to remain Canadians.

The presence of the two Quebecers in Scona certainly put a human face on Canada's Quebec problem. As if they were made-to-order for Mr. Robinson's Social Studies 10 classroom, Lydie was a committed federalist while Marie-Claude was a die-hard separatist. Both girls were very open about sharing their views on Canada's history and Quebec's future. A lot of good debate and discussion resulted from this. In the end, we came to appreciate how much the Quebecois are like us - and yet, how different their perspectives can be from our own.

Although Lydie and Marie-Claude were kept very busy with school work and sight-seeing activities, both students participated actively in community life at Scona. The girls visited Social Studies, French Language Arts, and Foods classes to share knowledge about Quebec's politics, society and culture. Lydie even made time to compete as part of Scona's championship swim team.

Certainly, our experience with Marie-Claude and Lydie demonstrated the value of student-exchange programs. It was amazing to see how much the English language-skills of the two Francophones improved during their short stay in Alberta. It was remarkable too, to realize how much we learned from them. Canada is a much richer place with our two Quebecers in it.

THINKING AHEAD

Through 1995 and 1996, young people have been the centre of some of society's most prevalent issues.

Consider education, a sector which has been the target of immense government pressures. Beyond hindering the quality of education services provided, cuts to the sector have revealed a common trend in the government's attitude towards the lives of Albertans.

As young people, we will have to decide, in the near future, what the fate of our society will be, and whether the dismantling of the social services that the citizens value is the direction in which society must strive. Furthermore, the issue of stress is one that has always plagued young people, but only recently has seemed to have reached a level of extremes. Are young people prone to social pressures which are so great that stress itself is defeating our self-esteem? Or, must young people recognize stress as an aspect of life which will by no means disappear, and one which must be accommodated for now?

Perhaps the environment in which today's youth must grow is far from the ideal society to prepare young people to face the 'real' world that awaits our arrival. If so, it is vital that change is made today to "empower youth for a better tomorrow," a future in which the availability of jobs, and the prospect of living a higher standard of life than our parents is bleak.

"I will prepare myself and my time will come." If young people can realize the merit in these words, there is no reason why not to be confident in the ability of society's youth to succeed, and to tackle the issues that often seem to tower above us in our journey through life. After all, the hurdles of life, which have always served as obstructions to the goal, are only meant to be jumped over, are they not?

Under pressure, Tim Batke and Miriam Guennewig concentrate on their exams.

THE LION'S DEN OPENS

Take off the red vail, sound the drums, blow the horns, the Scona School Store finally opened its doors. Initially it was slightly delayed, but soon enough announcements were being made to declare the grand opening of the store. In fact, there was even a contest to find the best name for the store. Out of the various entries, the most fitting name was "The Lion's Den". The "Den" carries various items and products ranging from mugs, t-shirts, shorts, sweatshirts and of course hats.

It is currently operated by 3 students. With the convenient location and availability, students no longer have to be in a school sport to own Strathcona memorandums. They also no longer need to search the building for a gym teacher to purchase a Scona item. Naturally, the effects of the store opening was seen immediately. More students and teachers were seen showing off their Scona spirit by purchasing various items at the store, and proudly displaying them the next day. Special thanks go out to Mr. Gerun and Ms. Brice for putting the store together and for all the other people who made this possible.

BATTLING BANDS

Everyone wants to be a rock star. But with some of the talent at Scona's second annual Battle of the Bands, obtaining fame won't be that difficult.

Scona bands of many different flavours jammed and jazzed the spectator-filled gymnasium, all with the same goal of proving to be the best. Ranging from the talented, to the not so well endowed, the audience was given a taste of almost every genre of the music world: from popular Muchmusic mainstream, Jazz City style, to the ever-mod punk. Instrumental, passionate, and powerful pieces were sampled, as well as free-line, "potty-mouth" lyrics, and performances that closely resembling a busy chain-saw. All, however, were a diverse delight to the audience and judges who were equally entranced by the calibre of these aspiring musicians.

After the success of last year's premiere of Scona's Battle of the Bands, it was definite that an encore event would occur. But now, with the outstanding triumph and prosperity of the second Battle, Lords everywhere agree that this event is one that is bound to endure a long going existence, adding to the many traditions maintained at Scona.

THE SCONA FOUR

Believe it or not, there are more than just track and field athletes roaming our hallways. Amidst the swimmers, curlers, and badminton players, Scona is also home to rowers. For the second year in a row, "The Scona Four" consisting of Susan Stewart, Sophie Dvorsak, Linda Keith, Jillian Faltin, and Gina Horning as coxswain, represented Scona at the Canadian High School Championships. The five Grade 11 students placed a proud eighth out of fifty in 1995 with Liz Hudson as coxswain. This year, the crew did even better, taking fourth place out of 52 entries. Over three days, the girls won their heat and semifinal and had an excellent showing in the final.

St. Catherine's, Ontario, has been home of the High School Champs for 51 years now, and this year's regatta accommodated thousands of athletes. Most individuals competed for their high schools and also trained using the school's boats. Strathcona's athletes, however, are coached out of the Edmonton Rowing Club. They train year round and will be competing all summer. Good luck next year!

GRADE ELEVENS UNITE!

1996 marked the beginning of a new tradition at Scona, that of a mock United Nations seminar.

The UN seminar gave an opportunity for grade eleven students to put to use the knowledge they acquired in their Social 20 classes. Each student was required to do research on a specific country and be able to defend "their" countries position in a mock United Nations general assembly. Topics ranged from global warming and the environment to political diplomacy. After hours of work and preparation, the highly anticipated day-long debate took place on June 7. Students were encouraged to dress in their country's native clothing and participate in a lunch with food indicative of their adoptive homeland. The event was a huge success.

While students enjoyed a break from the tedious and repetitive everyday classes they normally attended, this event proved to be fun and extremely informative. Rather than simply reading about the actions of the United Nations in textbooks and newspapers - a task which does little to emphasize the actual importance and awe of a collective international organization - students were given the rare opportunity to handle the subject with a hands-on approach. With the recent conflicts in countries such as Bosnia and Cuba, students must learn the about the necessity of diplomacy and peacekeeping. Although many question the actual effectiveness of the UN, by the end of the day it was clear that it is still a large step towards global cooperation.

THE LORD AWARD

At the beginning of every month, the SCAM club announces the winner of the Lord Award, an honour given to Scona's finest students. Unfortunately, only 10 students can be recognized because there are only 10 months in a school year. However, these 10 are the cream of the crop.

If a person excels in academics, athletics, volunteer work, community involvement or any combination of these, that person is eligible to receive an award. The student must be nominated by either a teacher or friend who then submits the nomination to the SCAM club. After much debate, a winner is chosen and is then presented with a gift basket of goodies.

In only its 3rd year of operation, the Lord Award remains an integral part of student life and school spirit.

"Now we seem to be going through a period of nostalgia, and everyone seems to think yesterday was better than today. I personally don't think it was, and I would advise you not to wait ten years from now before admitting today was great. If you're hung on nostalgia, pretend today is yesterday, and just go out and have one hell of a time."

THE REST IS SILENCE

This year's Commencement proved to be one of the most successful in Scona's history. A culmination of hard work and many talented speakers and entertainers made for a very memorable evening for the Senior Class of 1996. Grad Council members, Carolyn Norby and Greg Scott, hosted the event as our witty M.C.'s.

The evening's entertainment was provided by Scona alma mater which included a parody of SNL's Coffee Talk by class historians Sarah Dawrant and Davis Foth. Musical interludes were also provided by Alastair Briggs, who began the night with a number on the bagpipes, which was followed by a piano solo from pianist Mikolaj Warzynski, a cappella duet by Carolyn Waye and Michelle Fernandes, and a performance titled "Swamp Stomp" by the band, Fist Full of Pesos. The tribute song to the Class of '96 also made its debut that evening with lyrics by Qusair Mohamedbhai, and sung by Tracy Thomas.

Valedictorian Alice Fu reassured us with the optimistic view of our lives to come, and School Board Trustee Don Flemming and Mr. Anderson delivered encouraging messages to the 88th graduating class of Strathcona. The most touching speech of the night, however, was given by Keynote Guest Speaker, Duane Daines. Duane Daines was a former professional rodeo competitor whose career path was cut short by an accident which left him confined to a wheel chair. He was able to share his tragedy, and a personal lesson that had taken him almost a lifetime to learn. He inspired all those around him in the auditorium to have the faith and determination to conquer the challenges and obstacles that lies in our futures. And with that, "the rest is silence".

Nathan Birch and Jaime Bishop anticipate the exciting evening ahead.

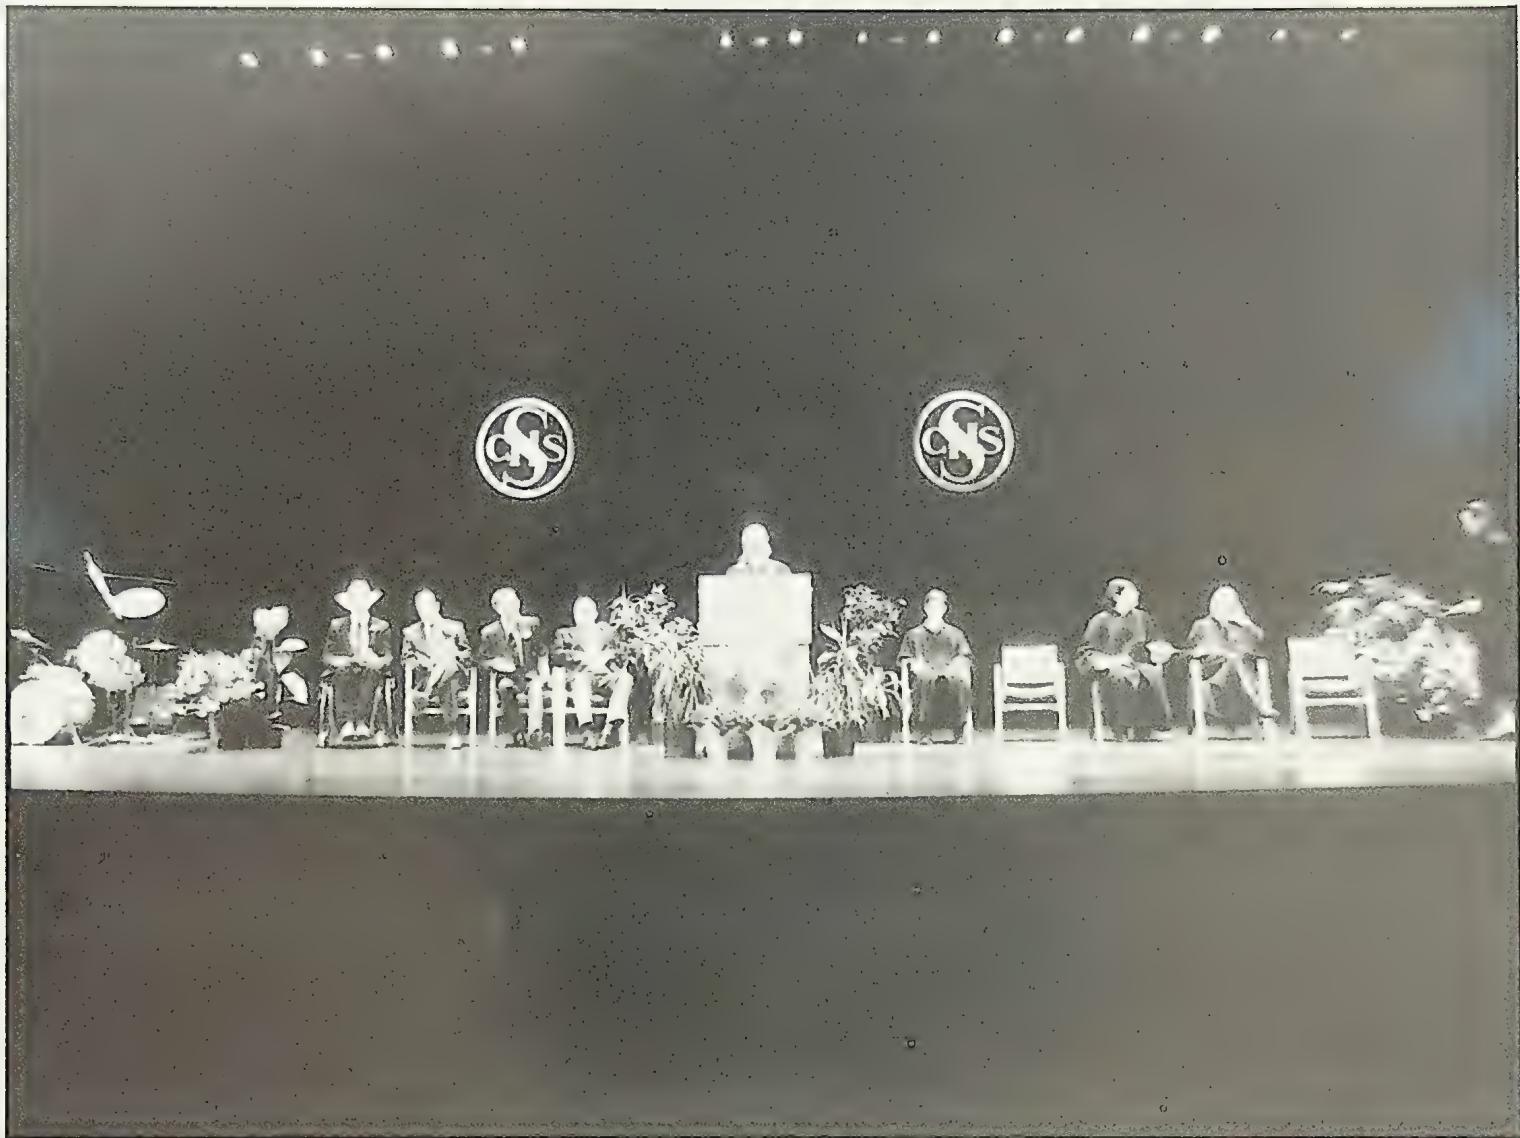

Mikolaj Warzynski amazes the audience with his beautiful performance.

This years grad council has the honor of organizing one of the best grads that Scona has seen in recent years.

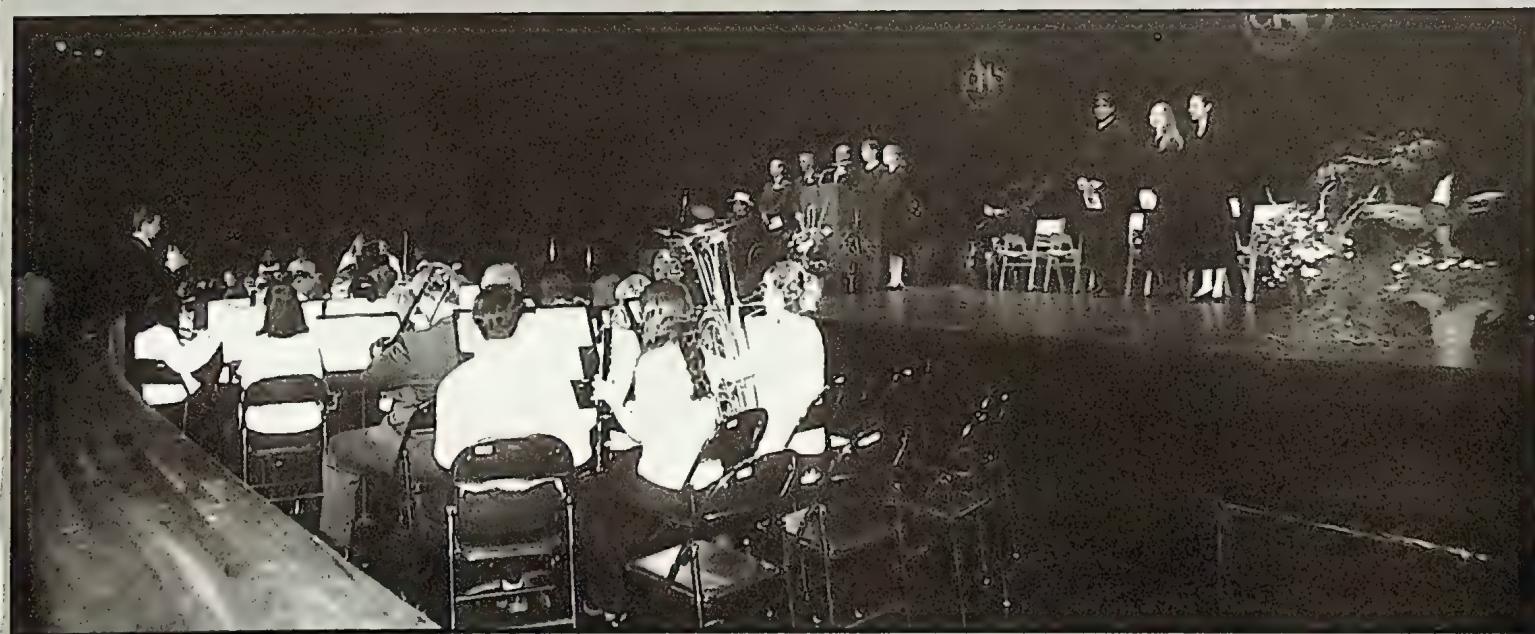

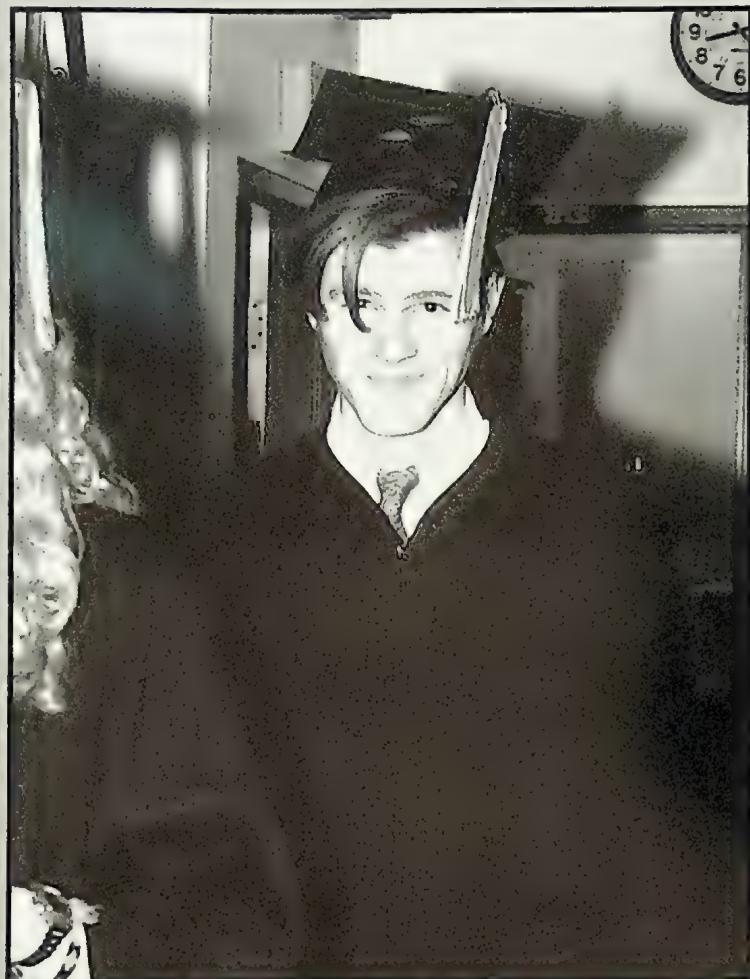

Carolyn Waye and Michelle Fernandes astound the audience with their angelic voices.

The stage is set as this years graduating class prepares to receive their diplomas.

James Parr beams proudly as he awaits his moment in the spotlight at the Jubilee auditorium.

Scona's notorious bagpiper is at it again! Alastair Briggs shows the crowd a little Scottish spirit.

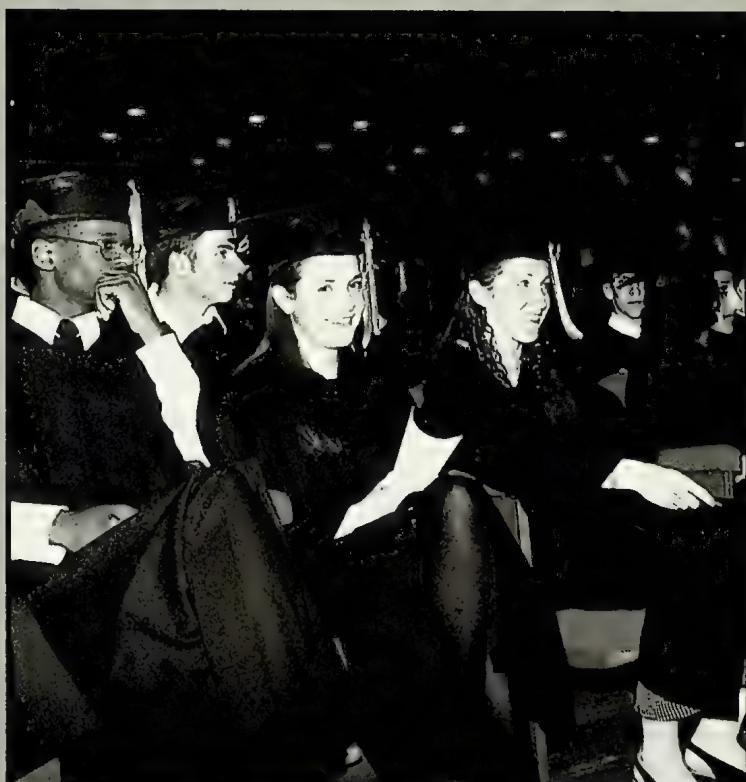

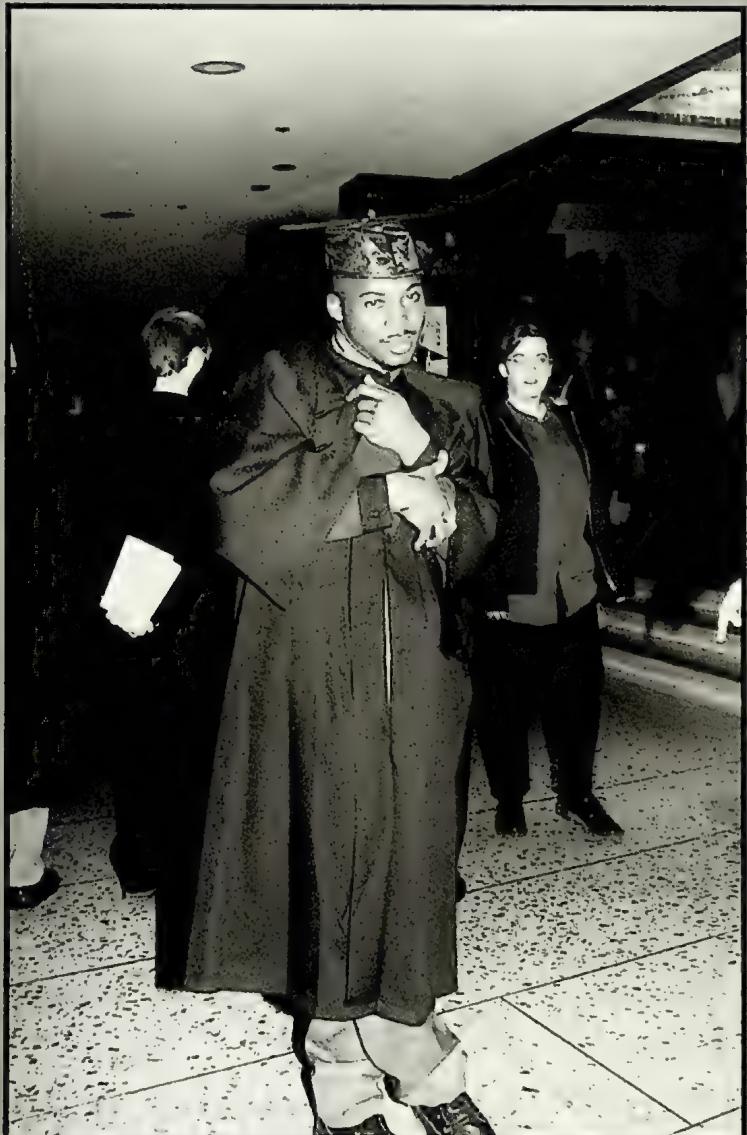

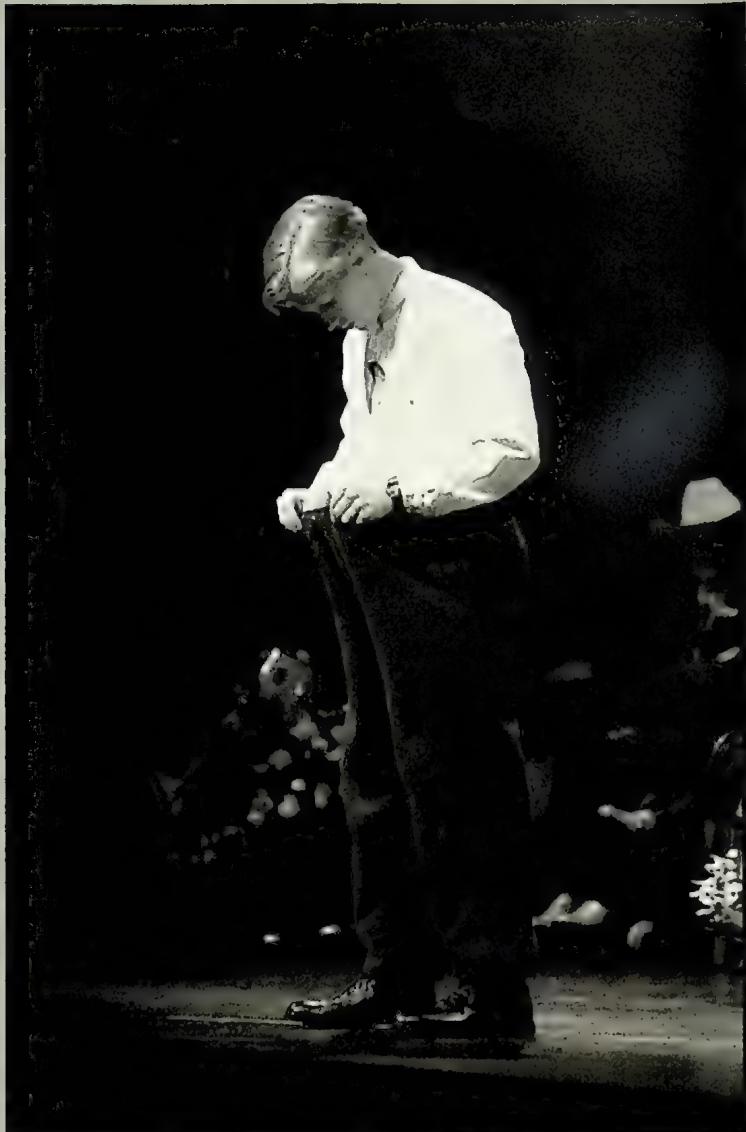

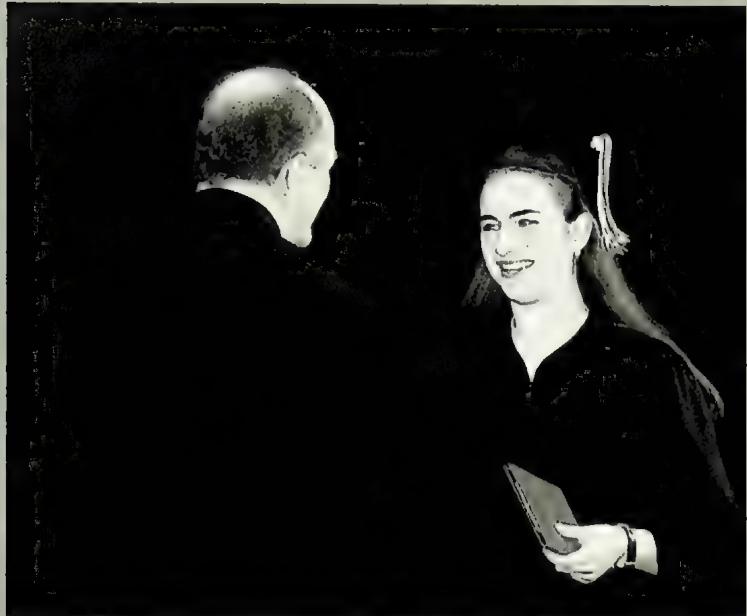

Say goodbye to Gaylord. The 1996 class gift is a new mascot costume, which will be much appreciated.

Scona's own, "A Fist Full of Pesos" jazz up the evening.

Mr. Klausen and the Junior Band use the acoustics of the Jubilee auditorium to their full advantage.

Mr. Anderson proudly congratulates, Effy Korodimas, one of this year's graduates.

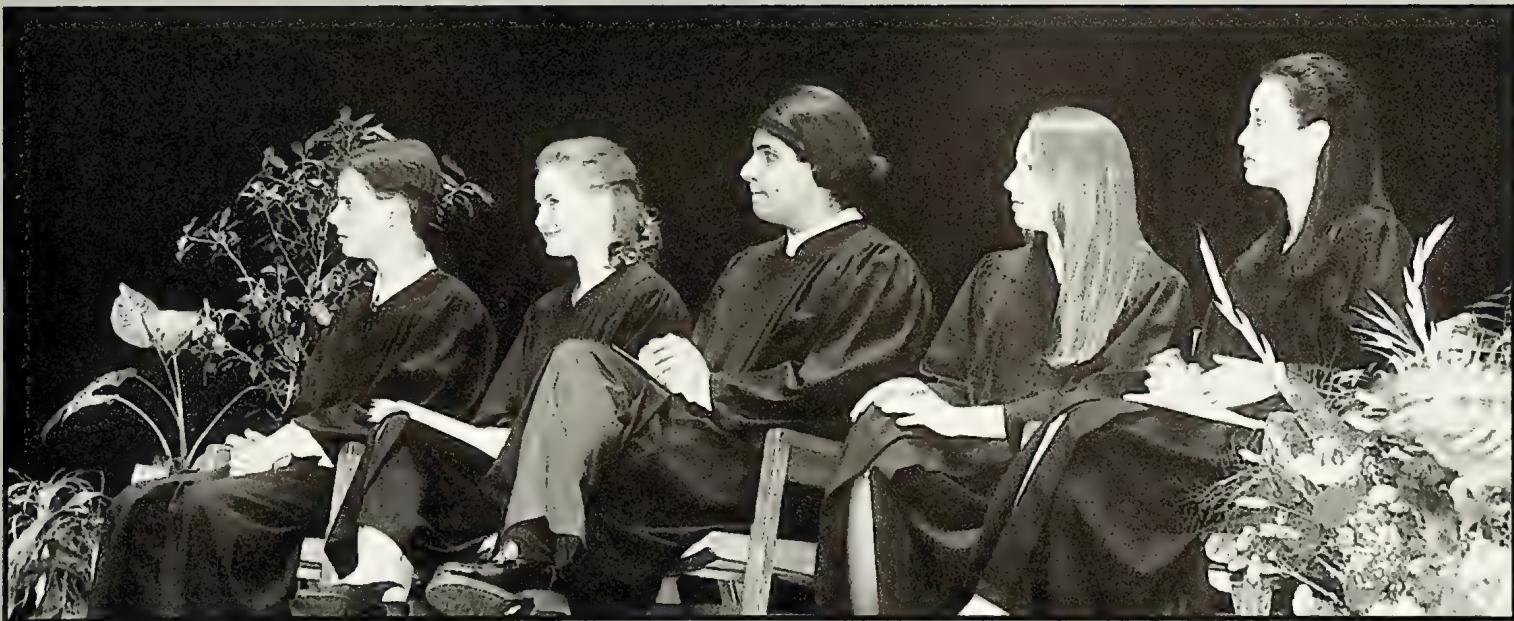

Let's hope that Davis Foth found what he was looking for!

Don Fleming was one of the many speakers of the evening.

Davis Foth and Sarah Dawrant bring a little culture to the evening with the Historian's speech.

Almost four hundred graduates celebrated their achievements this year.

The 1996 Grad Committee pulled off one of Scona's best commencements ever.

Tracy Thomas adds the finishing touch before her performance.

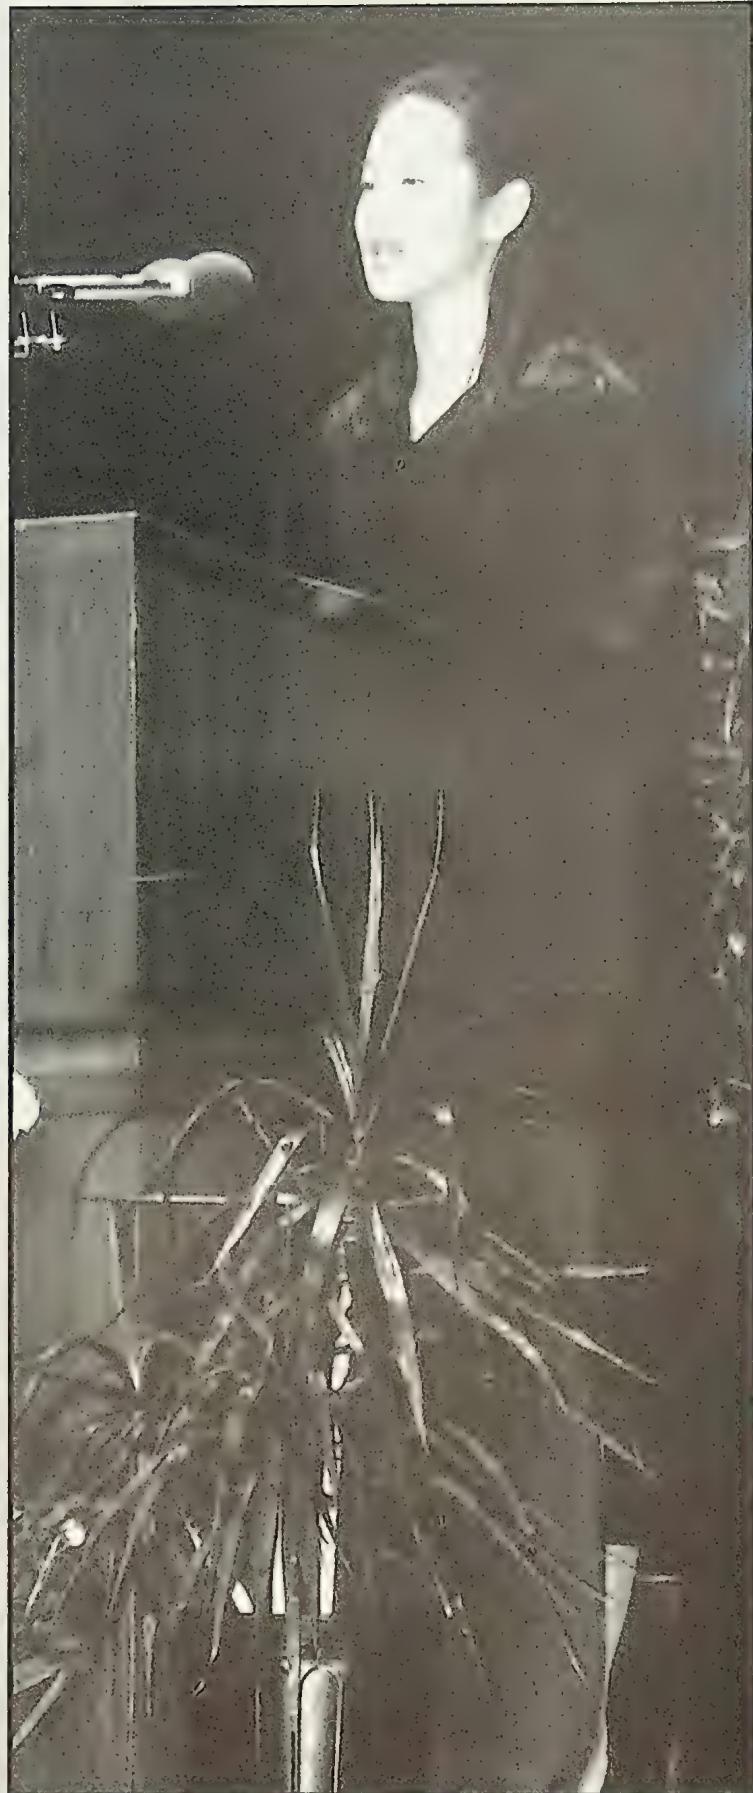

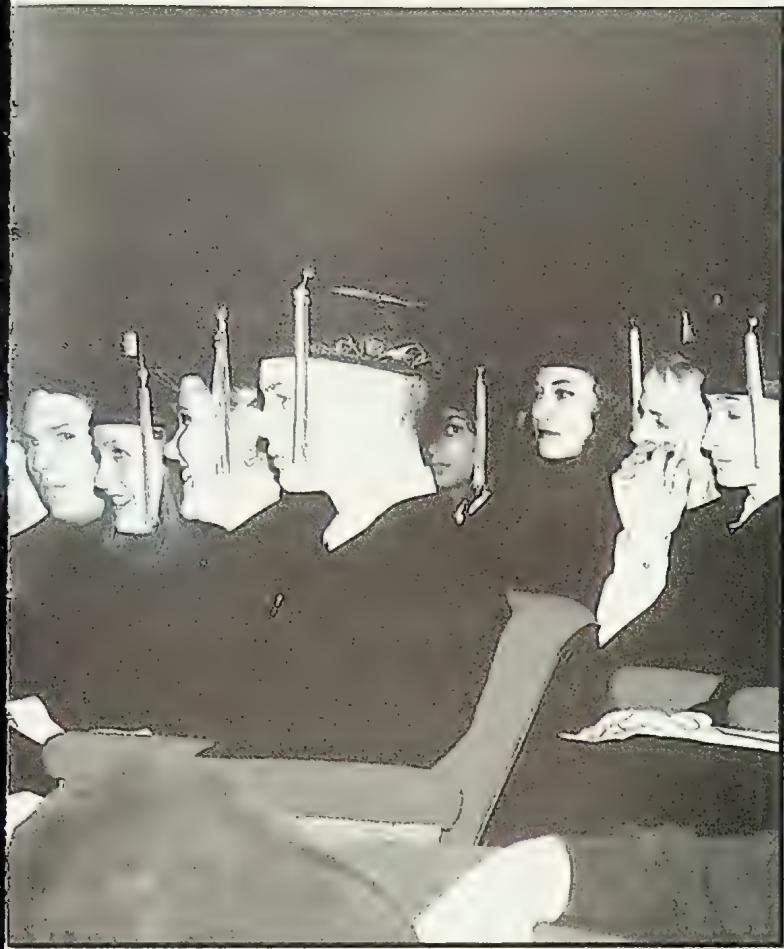

Just a face in the crowd. Graduates relax and enjoy the evenings entertainment.

That's all folks! Beayue Louie is escorted off the stage after receiving her hard earned diploma.

Ravi Sidhu thanks this years keynote speaker, Mr. Duane Daines.

Carolyn Norby and Greg Scott pull the evening together as the master and mistress of ceremonies.

Alice Fu has the honor of not only being Grad president but also representing her class as valedictorian.

1996 VALEDICTORIAN'S ADDRESS

Good evening honoured guests, parents, teachers, and fellow graduands. We are here tonight to celebrate our achievements - a culmination of twelve years of work, determination, and good times along the way. It brings us another step closer to facing on our own what many call "The Real World". "The Real World" ... they say... Is it then merely a dream world that we have been experiencing for the past eighteen years? We know that the answer is clearly no. Our lives have been anything but unreal: we have known success and failure, ecstasy and heart-break. We have laughed and we have cried; we are already in "The Real World" and are now notably moving to a life beyond high school: beyond the lockers, the noisy pep rallies and the lime green hallways.

From our three years together, we have gained many things though the most valuable of these are not tangible. They are the friendships, the knowledge, the experiences, and the memories. We have changed... we have grown.

Vast amounts of knowledge have been presented to us by our teachers, and whether it has been retained or not, it is overwhelming nonetheless. From Shakespeare to Physics Hand Rules, and from the causes of WWI to finding the slope of a tangent line - it is knowledge, and it has been ours for the taking. Whether or not we are willing to admit it, we are a little wiser.

However, our learning has not been limited to the confines of a classroom or textbook. We have learned from our wins and from our losses, and our wins have been incredible. We learned on the court... and won Volleyball Provincial Championships. We learned on the track, in the field, in the pool, and on the paths... and won consecutive City Championships in track and field, swimming, and cross-country. We learned amidst all of the beautiful sounds... and travelled to Banff to show off our Band. We learned on the stage... and gave many stupendous dramatic performances. We have been passionate and dedicated to what we do; we poured out our hearts and learned along the way.

Just beyond that Scona crest in the Michener Entrance is our future, and there lies many challenges. We can respond to them with grimaces and see them as yet more obstacles we are forced to deal with, or we can stare them in the eyes and attack with all our might. It is, of course, the second strategy that will lead us to success. We must accept the challenges that are placed before us; we must challenge ourselves to excel. By possessing this belief in ourselves and the courage to try, we will succeed.

We are here to make a difference, to touch the lives of those around us. Eleanor Roosevelt said, "The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams." The future belongs to us. Thank you and good luck in all that you pursue.

Sarah Dawrant: My name is Linda, and this is Coffee Talk. Today, my guest is a very important man. You all know him as the producer of many hit shows such as Beverly Hills 90210, Melrose Place, and also the super hit Strathcona T6E 0Z6. Here he is to chat with us about Strathcona, Mr. Aaron Spelling. Aaron, so, your series about teenagers at a Canadian high school has been on the air for what, three years now? Davis Foth: Yes most of the characters will be graduating this year. That means that it is time to move on.

S: Aaron, how the heck ya come up with this idea? Watching your other shows, they're so different from Strathcona. I mean, kids in Canada who shop on Whyte Ave, play hack-sac and, Aaron, it snows on your show. It's such an original idea. We've got a clip of the first episode of Strathcona T6E 0Z6. Let's take a look. Clip: S: Oohl! I'm so scared of high school. D: Don't worry! They treat us like adults now. You don't even have to go to classes. If you've got a substitute teacher, you're not even expected to go. And when you've not skipping class or running from the substitute, you've got spares.

S: I also heard that you can't walk within ten feet of this giant crest - and if you do, the football players give you a giant wedgie, and the principal expels you... or is it the other way around? D: Don't worry. Oh, look, the teacher with the mustache and the can of Coke says we need to go into the small gym and register. End Clip: S: I noticed that all the kids at Strathcona love to drink a lot of coffee in their spares, it's a good thing this is only TV show. D: I know, it's just TV. I get letters from doctors saying that it is physically impossible to drink that much coffee. S: I know, you'd think that after all of that coffee these kids would be unhealthy, but no, they're little running machines! The biggest after school activity these kids have is running track. D: Yeah, I know. "Run for Fun" - what kind of silly idea is that? I also gave them a "track tradition" - 25 years of winning the City Championship! - Let's go for another 25 more! Like kids in real life would fall for that! S: That always cracked me up. Okay, let's talk about the following season. I don't really remember anything happening that year, the season flew by. D: Well, we just concentrated on getting the students through the year painlessly. Besides, who remembers their junior year? S: I don't! Okay, now I remember something happening that year, um, there was some class that all the characters had to take, none of them went to it, um, what was it called? Relaxed... relaxation... D: It was called CALM - a stupid name, I know, but, I thought, let's educate the viewers while still keeping them interested. So I invented a class to teach them about life, love... relationships.

S: (Rings Bell) You know that sound! This is the time on Coffee Talk where we read viewer mail. Janine says "Aaron, love your show. But are you filming in a bathroom here? Also, what's up with those arrows - what are they pointing at anyway?" D: Well, we took this original idea and started filming in a forty year old school. As for the arrows, I thought they'd be inspirational or something - pointing upwards, reach for the stars - Whatever! S: "Reach for the stars," "Achieve." Corny, okay, one more letter. Barbara writes, "I loved that show you did about the big school dance. It was cute the way all of the Grade Tens showed up at 7:15 and everyone else came at 10:00PM. All fifteen of them had such a good time! That's all for mail call today. Okay, Aaron, let's talk about Gr. 12, final season. Baby, it's been getting exciting. More conflict, more stress..." D: Well, I thought they will be going into the real world next year, so I thought I'd give them a bit more to deal with. I tried to portray some of the typical Grade Twelve anxieties. S: Ooo, talking about Grade Twelve anxieties, we've got another clip. Clip: (holds hands, kiss, Sarah pushes away) D: What's wrong? Don't you like public displays of affection? S: It's not that, it's just I'm so stressed out. The decisions... the expense... This is the rest of my life we're talking about! D: I know. University. S: No, Grad!!!

What kind of dress should I get - straps or no straps? Back or no back? D: (To himself) Tux, or suit? S: AAA!! My hair? Up or down? D: (To self) Part on this side, part on that side? S: Should I get my makeup done? D: (To self) Shower and then shave? Shave and then shower? S: Oaa! I haven't even written up my grad quote yet, but I think I might have found one. Ready? "I am a piece of wet macaroni, floating on the wind, like grass." D: What does it mean? S: I don't know, but I thought it sounded kind of cool! D: I have one too. "I have climbed the deepest mountain, and swam the highest river, and all I found was a light switch at the end of a rainbow." S: Yours is way deeper than mine. What does it mean? D: Hello! I think it's pretty self-explanatory! Boh! We're gonna be late for track! End Clip: S: Those Grade Twelve's have had a lot to deal with, but I think the characters all grew up a lot this year. I'm really gonna miss watching Strathcona T6E 0Z6. D: Yeah, I'm really going to miss those kids. I know that Strathcona is a series that people will remember and cherish in their hearts forever. S: Oh, I can't believe it's all ending... I'm getting all verklempt!! I need a moment! Talk amongst yourselves, I'll give you a topic: Gaylord - neither is he a homosexual, nor is he a lord - discuss. Aaron, you're butter, thanks for being on the show, and thanks for all the memories. Join me tomorrow for Coffee Talk, where, baaaah! We talk, we drink coffee. See you then!

An Impression

As we played, in younger days
The world seemed so vast.
I told no lies, through virgin eyes,
All make the past.

Innocence lost, futures blind to me.
Childhood is done,
Struggles won,
Memories part of me.

To those in the past, we raise a glass.
Old bells chime,
Passing time...
When does the rest begin?

CHORUS

From you I learned to stand.
With love you held my hand.
But now is the time that I sadly must go,
From a past that I used to know.
And with my confidence strong—
Now, I move on.

The harness breaks,
Explode from the gates.
I ride free, with unsaddled steeds,
I dare not leave my beliefs.

CHORUS

As I look ahead,
Blindly I tread,
With dreams in my head.

Fire in my eyes.
New suns on the rise,
My world will change forever.

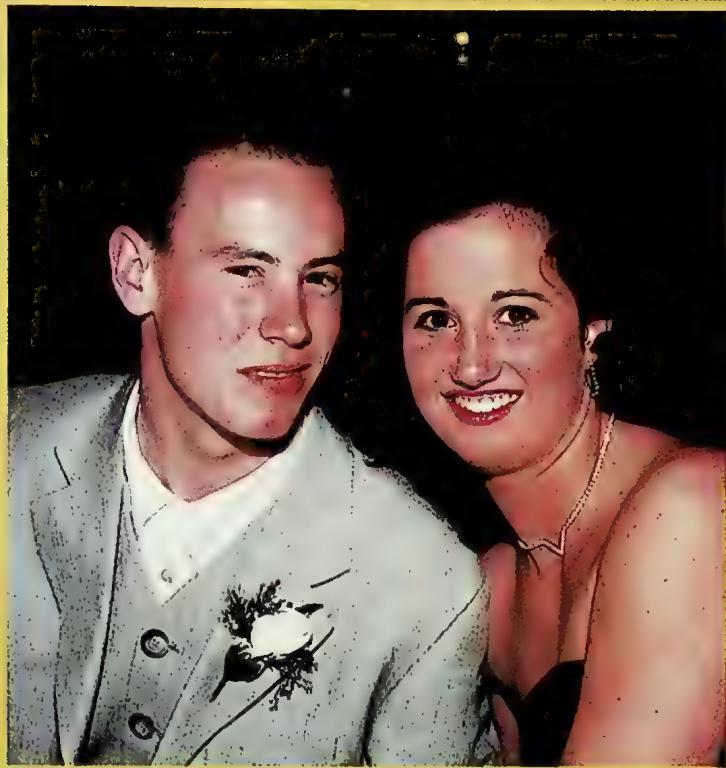

I hope that I find,
My simple mind,
Controlling the pace,
To win this life's race,
So I can make my difference.

I want to make my difference...

Ryan Wesolosky and Shae Fenske enjoy grad night together.

For 13 years, we have been looking forward to the day we graduate. We knew it would be the PARTY of our lives - but who knew it would be so stressful. The last PD Day of our educational paths was filled with alterations, picking up tuxes, buying corsages, getting hair and nails done, phoning the limo services and getting to the pre-grad parties by 4:00PM. We may not have made it to the pre-grad parties, but we were at the Convention Centre by 6:00 for the reception, or at least for dinner by 7:00PM.

Smile-Pose-Flash! With the amount of pictures taken that night, we alone kept Kodak in business. But we just had to get that picture with that guy in our Chem class and that acquaintance from Grade 10.

After dinner and coffee, the program began. The various toasts and replies were well delivered and eloquent, and gave a different message to each of us. Then the race for seats began. The slide show recapped our Grade 12 years by embarrassing and humiliating each graduate, and reminded us of those moments that we thrived on. Mr. McEachern's "heart warming" speech followed. His ideas on absurdity and political correctness amused us all, but also gave us insight into the real world. The program flowed very smoothly and except for the odd cut to Mr.

Wallace, a good time was had by all.

After the pictures, the food and the speeches, it was time to dance. And dance we did! From the Violent Femmes to Mariah Carey, we went crazy on the dance floor. Why not? We survived high school and it was time to celebrate - either on the dance floor, Safe-Grad, or any other post-Grad celebration.

Grad was a time to forget about all your problems such as diplomas, marks, and finding a job. The party that lasted several hours felt like mere seconds on perhaps the most memorable night of our teenage years.

What is Allstair Briggs wearing under his kilt?
Gavin Berg attempts to uncover the Scottish secret!

Sarah Dawrant is not a stranger to the spotlight, as she helps distribute the grade twelve personality awards.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrar enjoy the evening's dinner with Mrs. Fearey.

Perfect foils, Christian Enciso and Nathan Birch sport completely different tastes in attire.

The enthusiasm runs rampant as the thought of graduating becomes a reality.

Whether it be dancing or staring in awe, everyone is having fun on the dance floor.

A night of memories and friends, grad '96 proves to be a memorable one.

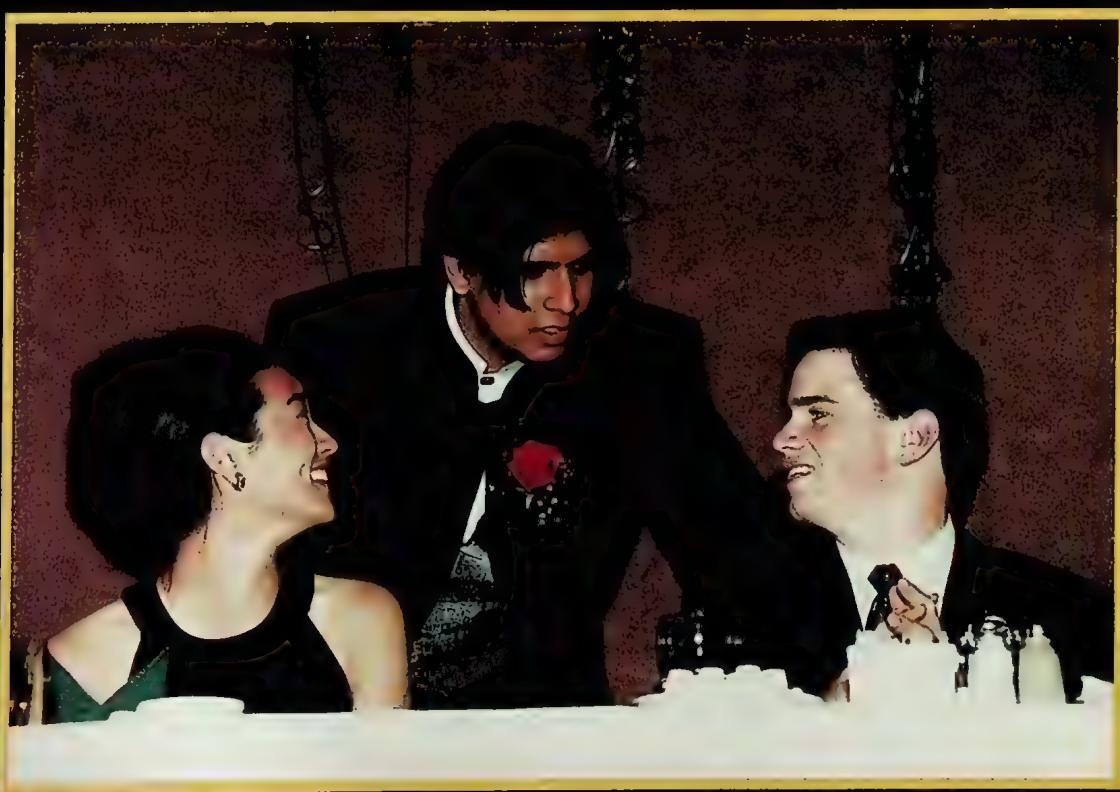

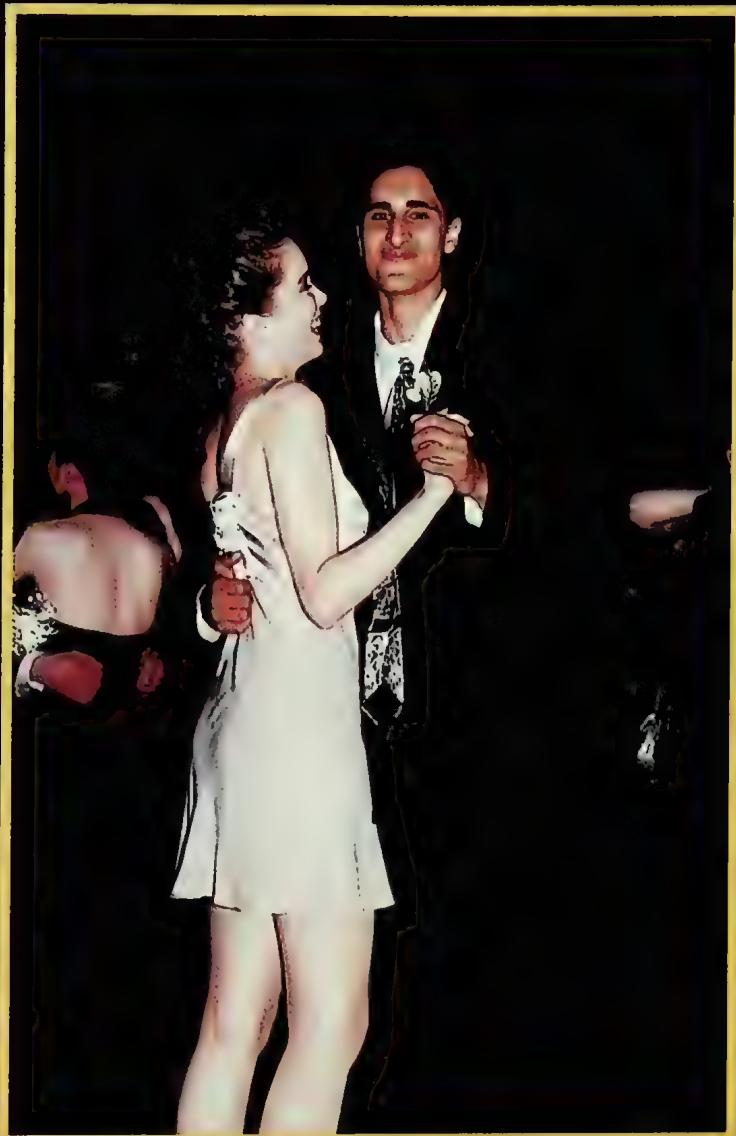

Tony Chawla impresses Treena Neumann with his graceful dance moves.

Dressed all in black, these Scona Lords are taking the Convention Centre by storm.

Sittanur Shoush creates an aura of elegance.

Tony Kim and helium balloons, a good combination?

Ravi Sidhu and his fellow graduates Alice Fu and John Lemieux chat before the meal is served.

"I'm finally done!" Don Rivers expresses his obvious excitement.

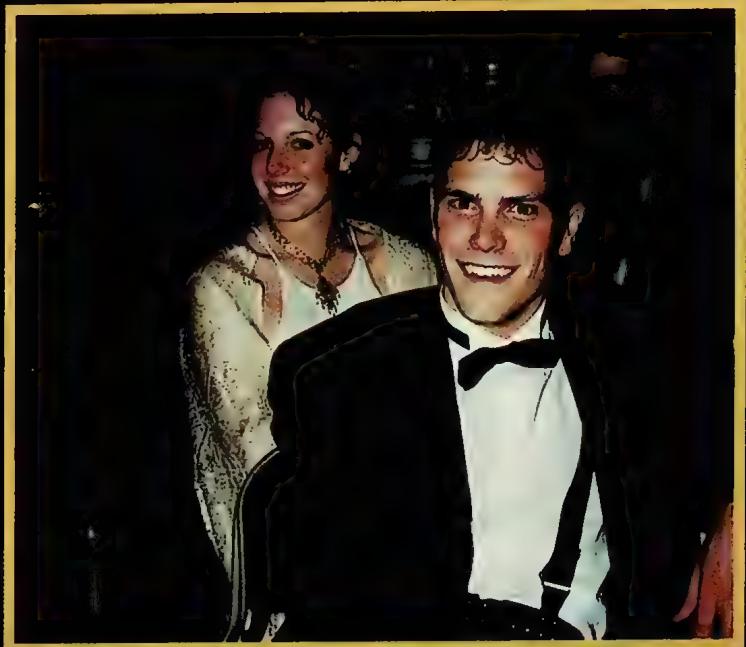

Friends gather to celebrate the exciting event of graduation.

Ghelsea McKay responds graciously to the graduates toast.

Dickson Quan and Katie Schultz can't contain their excitement.

Joel Guilbert and Andrea Bell are caught in an awkward moment.

Say cheese! Alana Milne and Erik Koenig show off their smiles.

Sporting a western look, Jeremy Bloomer and Brad Hagan are definitely standing out in the crowd.

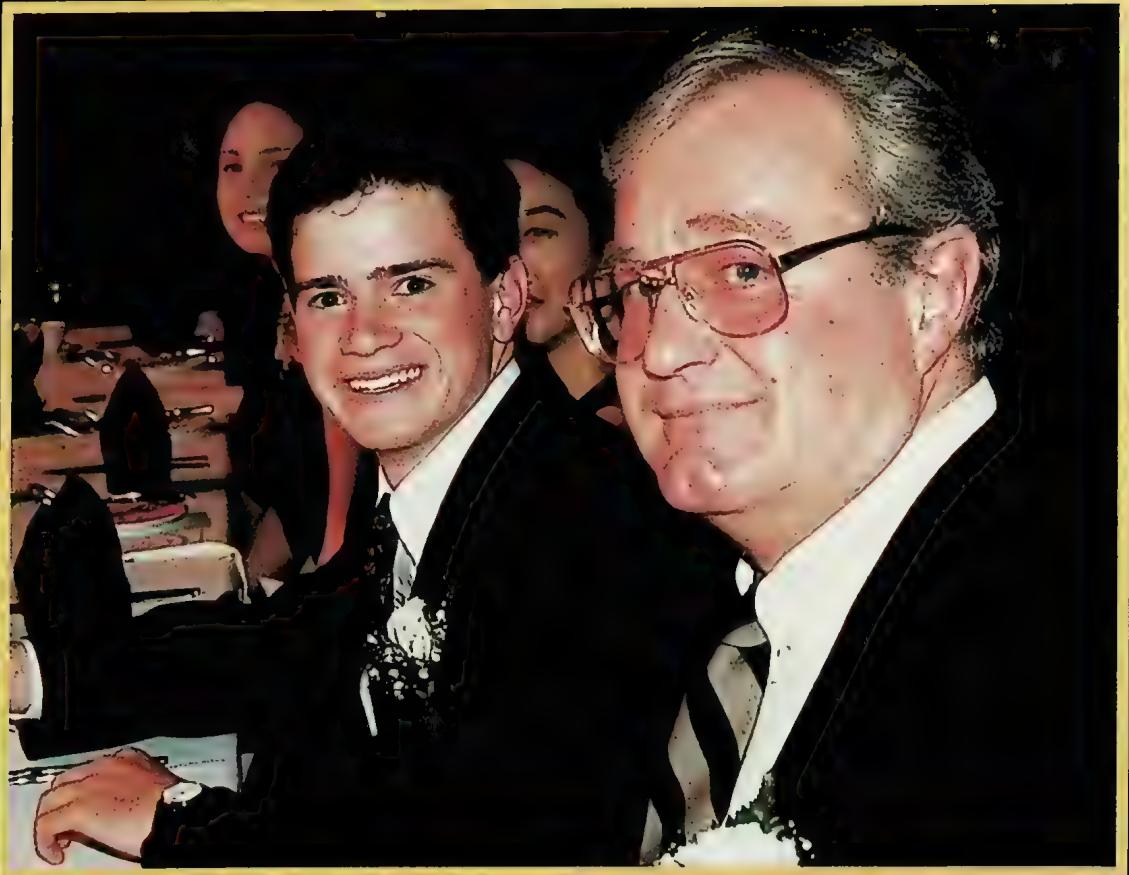

Qusair Mohamedbhai and Anne-Marie Ennis snuggle close for the camera.

Kristina Zrobok is caught by surprise.

John Lemieux enjoys the company of Honorary Grad President, Mr. McEachern.
